INJURED TREATED

Teen-agers injured in Claremont Wednesday night were riding in the small car in the foreground. They were taken by ambulance to Pomona Valley Community Hospital. Firemen and an ambulance crew work over one of the three victims being placed in ambulance.

3 teen-agers hurt as auto hits tree

Three teen-agers were injured Wednesday evening when their car went out of control and slammed into a tree in a center divider on Foothill Boulevard in Claremont, police reported.

The accident occurred shortly before 7 p.m. at the Claremont Boulevard intersection.

The driver, John A. Wheeler, 16, of Ontario, was westbound on Foothill when the automobile went out of control. Wheeler and one passenger, Steve K. Jettson, 16, of Montclair, both were treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and released later. Another passenger, 14-year-old Laurie Mayo, of Upland, was admitted and was reported in fair condition there today.

Police said that when they arrived, Miss Mayo was pinned by one leg in the back seat of the small auto. Both youths were found lying outside the 1976-model vehicle which was a total loss.

Witnesses said the accident occurred as the driver was making a lane change.

Third crash fatal for city woman

A Pomona woman's third traffic accident within 10 minutes killed her in Azusa and authorities today were attempting to determine what caused the series of crashes which led to her death.

The victim, Shirley Scott, 35, was pronounced dead on arrival at Glendora Community Hospital after her third collision — a headon crash in the 800 block of Cerritos Avenue. Also injured in that collision was the other driver, 70-year-old Gertrude Tscharner, of Azusa. She suffered what were described as massive chest injuries, a skull fracture and broken jaw. She was in serious condition today in the hospital's intensive-care unit.

Police Lt. Ray Roth said the series of accidents began in Glendora shortly after 3 p.m. Tuesday when Mrs. Scott, who was in the process of obtaining a divorce, drove onto a used car lot on Arrow Highway, hit a moving car and drove away.

Eight minutes later she caused a three-car accident in Azusa, at Cerritos and Gladstone avenues, in which three persons were injured slightly when she rear-ended a car, knocking it into a third auto, police said.

She continued driving until she suddenly swerved across the center line about two minutes later and collided headon with Mrs. Tscharner's auto. The impact demolished both autos.

Roth said Mrs. Scott, who lived at 842 W. Orange Grove Ave., suffered massive injuries to her upper torso. An autopsy has been ordered and a spokesman for the coroner's office said that toxicological tests have been requested in an attempt to determine the cause of Mrs. Scott's erratic behavior.

Spill from tanker mars beach area off Santa Monica

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Hundreds of gallons of crude oil spilled from a tanker moored off the coast and contaminated about a mile of picturesque beachfront, officials said.

Coast Guard Ensign Edward R. Rodriguez said the oil first washed ashore Wednesday afternoon, about 24 hours after it was spilled into the ocean while being transferred from the U.S. flag tanker Manhattan to a coastal refinery.

By nightfall, lifeguards said the oil had coated much of the prime beach area here to a depth of one inch.

"It's a bad spill," said county lifeguard Lt. Dick Weaver. "Maybe it's not a massive one, but it's a gooey mess, just the same."

Weaver said there were no immediate plans to close the beach.

The Manhattan, moored about a mile offshore, was transferring the oil through buoys to the Chevron refinery in El Segundo, Rodriguez said. The unloading was being done above the refinery's undersea pipelines.

The oil slick was estimated to be 400 yards long and 40 yards wide before it moved ashore about a half a mile south of the Santa Monica Pier.

A Coast Guard report placed the blame on a faulty or partially closed valve, but the spill was still being investigated, Rodriguez said.

Early morning fog followed by afternoon sunshine today and Friday. Slightly cooler. High today 80, low tonight 50, high Friday 78. The high Wednesday was 85 and the overnight low was 52. Friday's sunrise 3:40, sunset 6:47.

Promises orderly transition

Carter launches search to replace man he claims is 'irreplaceable'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is trying to replace a man he says is irreplaceable.

Fighting sorrow at the resignation of longtime friend Bert Lance as budget director, Carter began the search today for a successor.

One of his first visitors of the day was Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., who told reporters he found Carter calm, relaxed and even in what the senator called a happy mood.

"In a sense, he feels he's had a problem lifted from him," said Randolph, whose visit to the White House was to urge Carter to increase fund requests for economic development programs.

"There will be an orderly transition," the President told a news conference Wednesday when he announced Lance's resignation. "I will decide beginning after today on who a successor might be."

Among names that quickly surfaced were:

—James T. McIntyre Jr., director of Georgia's budget office in 1972 while Carter was governor and now deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget, which Lance had headed.

—Robert Strauss, a former chairman of the Democratic National Committee and now the U.S. ambassador for trade negotiations.

—Alice Rivlin, director of the Congressional Budget Office.

—Hale Champion, former California finance director and now an official at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Carter said the task of finding a new budget director won't be easy.

"I don't think there is any way that I could find anyone to replace Bert Lance that would be, in my judgment, as competent, as strong, as decent and as close to me as a friend and adviser as he has been," the President said.

"Obviously, the government will continue," Carter declared, "and I hope to do a good job as President, and I am sure a successor will be adequate.

"But there has been a special relationship between me and Bert Lance that transcended official responsibilities or duties or even governmental service of the last six or seven years.

"So he has occupied a special place in my governmental career, in my political career, and in my personal life. I don't think there is any way anyone could replace him now."

Carter hinted that he might have an additional problem because of the controversy that finally forced Lance to resign.

Asked if the Lance affair had damaged his own credibility with the American people, the President replied: "I can't say. I'd guess to some extent."

In a letter to "My Dear Mr. President," Lance quit "because of the amount of controversy and the continuing nature of it" surrounding his personal financial affairs and his business dealings as the head of two Georgia banks.

His departure ends the first internal crisis in the President's young administration.

In three days of testimony last week before the Senate committee, Lance said he might have made some mistakes but declared that his conscience was clear of any wrongdoing.

He said the same to Carter.

"It was, and is, important that my name and reputation be cleared, for me, my wife, my children, my grandchildren and those who have trust and faith in me. And I believe that this has been done," Lance wrote in his letter of resignation.

Question after question at the news conference was about Lance.

Carter cast his eyes down from time to time, tightened his lips and responded to the questions.

Would Carter have asked for the resignation if Lance had not volunteered it?

"That's hard to say," the President said.

29 killed in airliner crash

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — A Russian-made Hungarian airliner with an engine aflame crashed and burned as it tried to make an emergency landing in a sunflower field near Bucharest Wednesday night, killing 29 of the 53 persons aboard, it was reported today.

A survivor said the twin-engine plane, bound from Istanbul to Budapest, broke in two upon impact and most or all of the dead, including the eight crew members, were in the front section.

He said Romanian farmers who saw the crash rushed to the scene and helped survivors jump to safety from the fire-engulfed wreckage.

The crash occurred at about 7 p.m. near the town of Urziceni, 40 miles east of this capital city, as the Malev Hungarian airlines plane approached Bucharest for a scheduled stopover.

Survivor Sadik Akalan, 52, head of an Istanbul cement factory, said the plane was quickly losing altitude as it headed for Bucharest's Otopeni airport and he suddenly noticed the right engine had caught fire.

"As the plane touched the ground, I first believed we were on a runway, but it started to jolt violently and then suddenly stopped," Akalan said.

"One of the hostesses came to us and told us to jump.... I found myself wrapped in heavy smoke, and the plane was on fire. I jumped.... It was less than two minutes between the time I saw the flames and we landed...."

Akalan, who said there was no explosion, looked back and saw the plane broken in two, "the front portion looking devastated — and every one in there was killed.'..

The Hungarian news agency MTI said the dead passengers were 12 Hungarians, four West Germans and five Turks, and all the survivors but Akalan were Hungarians.

The Romanian news agency did not carry a story on the plane crash. It said an official communique was expected later today.

Body of beaten, torched man that of ex-Pomonan

A man found beaten to death and his body practically destroyed by fire near Yucaipa has been identified as a former Pomonan who was recently released from the California Rehabilitation Center at Norco, San Bernardino County authorities said today.

At the same time, homicide detectives asked the public's help in tracing the activities of the victim, Timothy D. Dwight, 26, from Aug. 16, when he was released from the center, until Sept. 13, when his charred body was discovered in a remote area near the Riverside-San Bernardino county lines.

Detective Dennis O'Rourke, of the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department, said investigators were also interested in interviewing anyone who knew Dwight at CRC.

O'Rourke said two men, believed to have been members of the Aryan Brotherhood, a prison gang, were in Pomona Aug. 28, looking for Dwight. He said that Dwight's slaying may have been the result of drug dealing.

Dwight's body was identified through dental charts.

Dwight, arrested on several narcotics charges, was sent to the center on a conviction for receiving stolen property, O'Rourke said. He added that the Pomonan did not report to his parole officer after his release.

FIVE HURT IN BLAST

While firemen battle a blaze in San Francisco's Pier 43 today, ambulance stewards, left, place a burn victim on a stretcher. In the background is Fisherman's Wharf attraction "Balclutha". Thousands of tourists watched explosion and fire which injured five, some critically. Damage was estimated at $80,000. Paul Girard of Pacific, Gas & Electric Co. said workers were servicing a four-inch, high-pressure gas main at the time but there was no immediate indication of what caused the explosion.

Davis claims new police policy could turn city into 'jungle'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Warning that a new police firearms policy could turn the city into "a jungle," Police Chief Ed Davis says the rules could cause officers to end up with "guns in their holsters and bullets through their heads."

"You have chosen to place the drawing of firearms into a very tight policy constraint," Davis said Wednesday in a letter to the city's Police Commission urging that the rules be revised.

"I have watched too many police officers die. I have attended too many funerals," Davis said. "When you have had these experiences, you cannot help but be extremely cautious that you not inhibit in any way the ability of an officer to protect himself."

Davis was in Sweden for an Interpol meeting Sept. 8 when the commission approved the new rules, which require that an officer not shoot unless a fleeing person has committed a violent crime and poses a substantial risk of causing death or serious injury to others.

The commission approved the new policy as the result of a public controversy over the increasing number of fatal police shootings this year. More than 30 persons have been killed so far this year, compared to 27 in each of the previous two years.

"If this (the new policy) is not changed and if your rule is vigorously enforced, it is almost inevitable that officers of this department will be walking into situations with their guns in their holsters and bullets through their heads," Davis contended.

Davis, a 1978 Republican gubernatorial hopeful also warned that police morale will plummet if the guidelines remain in their present form.

Retrial decision unveiled

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A decision by the California Supreme Court this summer could trigger an unknown number of new trials, including a retrial of two Symbionese Liberation Army members, officials say.

The 1975 conviction of SLA members Russell Little and Joseph Remiro for the assassination of Oakland schools superintendent Marcus Foster would be the most notorious case retried if the decision stands, a deputy state attorney general said Wednesday.

Another eligible case is that of four young Black Muslims convicted three years ago of conspiracy to murder in the shotgun ambushes of white persons.

Both are on appeal.

The Supreme Court's Aug. 31 decision struck down the so-called "dynamite charge" that judges have used in efforts to break deadlocked jury deliberations. It is formally called the Allen instruction, approved by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1896 in the murder conviction of a 14-year-old named Alexander Allen.

The high court's 6-1 opinion, written by Justice Stanley Mosk, held that there are automatic grounds for a retrial if the judge tells a jury that the minority jurors should rethink their position in light of the majority's opinion. That is prejudicial, Mosk wrote.

Mosk also said that it was untrue for a judge to say that a case must eventually be decided.

Space Shuttle's 3rd test flight scheduled Friday

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE (AP) — The third test flight of the Space Shuttle Enterprise has been scheduled for Friday after scientists pronounced the spacecraft ready to go sooner than had been thought.

Ten days after the experimental craft made what project spokesmen called an "essentially perfect" gliding descent, the Enterprise will again cut loose from its jumbo jet carrier plane at 25,000 feet and glide back to earth.

Astronauts Fred Haise and Gordon Fullerton, who guided it to its first successful landing Aug. 12, will fly the 75-ton Enterprise during Friday's test.

State briefs

Evel Knievel arrested

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Motorcycle stuntman Evel Knievel, who apparently was en route to surrender to police, was arrested for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon in an alleged attack on a 20th Century Fox executive, authorities said.

Knievel was released late Wednesday night after posting $1,000 bond. He was scheduled to be arraigned next Wednesday in West Los Angeles Municipal Court.

Police said Knievel knew he was being sought and it appeared he had planned to turn himself in when he was arrested by a patrol officer who spotted him on a freeway in North Hollywood.

Sheldon Saltman, 46, was treated for compound fractures of the left arm and a broken right wrist after the incident earlier Wednesday, authorities said.

The vice president of the telecommunications division of Fox Studios told police that Knievel and an unidentified man confronted him outside the studio commissary. He said Knievel hit him with a baseball bat, according to police.

Mark Erickson, an aide to Saltman, said Saltman used to be Knievel's publicity agent and wrote the book "Evel Knievel on Tour." The book told the story of the much-publicized but ill-fated Snake River Canyon stunt which Knievel failed to accomplish.

Erickson said Knievel apparently was upset with some parts of the book.

CHP warns truckers

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California Highway Patrol warns it would be "short-sighted and unwise" for an independent truckers group to boycott the state in protest against the 55 mph speed limit.

The CHP said Wednesday it sent the warning to Jim Griffin of Norwalk, president of the 400-member Southern California Independent Truckers Association.

Griffin had earlier written Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. that CHP Commissioner Glen Craig's crackdown on speeding trucks constitutes "cheap harrassment" and truckers would organize a boycott.

Also, Mike Parkhurst, editor of "Overdrive" magazine and official of the Independent Truckers Association, said truckers might protest by getting convoys rolling along at exactly 55 mph. He said if other motorists are annoyed enough, they might put pressure on the CHP.

Griffin said unless Brown acts by Christmas, "we, the independents, will be forced to take measures that won't be gentlemanly."

Oil terminal roadblock

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A state commission has thrown yet another obstacle before Standard Oil Co. of Ohio's attempt to build an oil tanker terminal at Long Beach Harbor.

In a report Wednesday to the California Coastal Commission, the commission staff challenged the company's plan to locate six huge storage tanks within shaking distance of four major earthquake faults.

It recommended that Sohio's application to construct a terminal that would receive Alaskan crude oil be approved only if 13 conditions are met.

One of those conditions was that only two of the proposed 615,000-barrel storage tanks be built on the pier, with the rest located inland, to reduce the danger of spills in the event of a quake.

The commission voted to postpone a decision on the Sohio project for one month.

SAD DAY IN CALHOUN, GA.

Friends of Bert Lance listen to his resignation announced by President Carter Wednesday. Watching television at the Gordon County Chamber of Commerce in Calhoun are from left, Rev. Bob Maddox, Joe Brewster, county administrator; Paul Whittemore; Harold Faith, county commissioner; B.J. Bell, and Mayor Billy Burdette, standing.

Lance faces financial woes; he'll head back to Georgia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bert Lance faces a troubled financial future as he and his wife pack their bags and head home for Georgia.

The Lances have not said what they will do now that Lance has resigned his White House job, but President Carter said his former budget director "needs to go home to take care of his business."

Mrs. Lance told reporters Wednesday night: "I think we'll go back to Georgia. I hope God will send me back for a while. I want to see my children."

The Lances still have their 50-room Butterfly Manna mansion, one of the biggest and most elaborate estates in the exclusive Buckhorn section of Atlanta.

The Lances put the mansion up for sale for $2 million last month, but it has not been sold. It was not clear whether they would live there. They also own a $100,000 house in Calhoun, Ga., and a vacation home on Sea Island, Ga.

Now that he is leaving Washington, Lance will no longer have to pay the $18,000-a-year rent for his house in Georgetown, and will not have to sell his stock in the National Bank of Georgia at a loss.

He owned about $2.9 million in National Bank of Georgia stock when he took office, but it has declined in value from $17 a share to about $12. He could lose $1 million if he sells it.

Although he owns 17 per cent of the bank stock, it was not clear whether he would have a job with the bank if he returned.

Robert Guyton, who replaced Lance as president of the Atlanta bank, said Wednesday night, "Obviously, we don't know Mr. Lance's plans for the future."

One of Lance's biggest problems is a $3.4 million loan from the First National Bank of Chicago. Lance has to pay $225,000 per year in interest on that loan and had been counting on stock dividends to help pay for it. However, his bank's financial troubles forced suspension of dividends on that stock in the last quarter.

The Chicago bank has demanded more collateral because of the decline in the value of the Georgia bank stock and as a result of studies of Lance's finances by banking regulators. Lance has put most of his real estate up as loan collateral.

At his confirmation hearings, Lance listed a net worth of $2.6 million, with assets of $7.9 million and liabilities of $5.3 million, but the picture may not be as good now.

For one thing, Lance has personally had to pay for a lot of the work done to defend himself at Senate hearings and for reports by the comptroller of the currency.

Lance also faces continued investigation and possibly legal costs from a variety of government agencies looking into his affairs.

The Justice Department, Internal Revenue Service and the Federal Election Commission are investigating his use of bank aircraft, and the Securities and Exchange Commission is trying to find out if he and his bank made enough disclosures to stockholders.

Mennonites given 10-day extension

SEMINOLE, Tex. (AP) — More than 500 Mennonite settlers have been given a 10-day extension to an order that they leave the United States today.

"They have been given an extension to Oct. 1 to give them an opportunity to document their claim of extreme hardship," Immigration and Naturalization Service official Verne Davis told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal. "After Oct. 1, a new decision will be made."

The original order said if the Mennonites did not leave voluntarily, they would be deported.

The Mennonites arrived in west Texas several months ago from Mexico and Canada. They had hoped to establish a church-and farm-centered communities.

They were allowed into the country on temporary or visitor visas that do not allow a foreigner to work, and have had trouble obtaining certification from the U.S. Labor Department that would make them eligible for jobs and permanent visas.

Rhodesia orders U.S. nun to leave

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Sister Janice McLaughlin, an American nun arrested for security laws violations, was ordered expelled from Rhodesia today and was flown from the country.

As the South African Boeing 720 took off a group of nuns and priests who thronged the observation platform sang "God Bless Africa, Listen to Our Prayers" in the local Shona language. Sister Janice had acknowleded in court her sympathy for Rhodesia's black nationalist insurgents.

Among those gathered for her departure was Archbishop Patrick Chakaiba. He said: "I am very pleased for her. She has been spared what could have been a heavy ordeal."

News conference was climax

Time to stop cat, mouse game

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter decided sometime Tuesday that it was time to stop playing cat and mouse with the future of Bert Lance.

So Carter scheduled a long-delayed news conference, a decision that touched off a rapid series of developments that reached a climax Wednesday with his announcement that Lance, his friend, confidant and sometime banker, was resigning as director of the Office of Management and Budget.

Although many predecessors were names-without-faces so far as most Americans were concerned, Lance was much more. He was close to Carter. A lot of folks thought about him as "deputy president."

Jody Powell, the White House press secretary, in annoucing the news conference, quoted his boss as saying, "Why don't we just go ahead and have one? I'm tired of moving the thing around."

When Powell was asked if these were Carter's exact words, he reported the President was "more vivid than that."

It was one sign of the emotional atmosphere around the White House when Carter decided to meet the press after holding off for a week because he wasn't ready with any firm answers about Lance's fate.

The decision to hold the news conference was closely followed by hurry-up meetings climaxed by the Lance resignation. Powell was asked afterwards if Carter had set out, in this fashion, to send Lance the message that it was time to make some basic decisions.

"Obviously, that was a possibility," Powell replied.

A few days earlier, Powell had said of a forced Lance resignation, "Certainly that would not be an easy thing for the President to do."

So there was at least an outward impression that Carter, unwilling to fire his friend to rid himself of a potential political liability, forced the issue in a way that prodded Lance into taking the initiative.

'Sam' suspect, woman in pen pal friendship

NEW YORK (AP) — A pen pal friendship apparently has developed between the alleged "Son of Sam" killer and a woman who has offered him a "place to stay when he gets out of the hospital."

Rosina Belpedio, 40, said late Wednesday she thinks David R. Berkowitz is handsome and "very close to me."

Miss Belpedio, nevertheless, has sold for $100 a letter Berkowitz wrote her. "I needed the money. I was broke. I hope 'Sam' forgives me," she said.

Berkowitz replied to two notes Miss Belpedio sent him at Kings County Hospital, where he is undergoing psychiatric tests. He is accused of murdering six persons in a 12-month period.

In his note, Berkowitz thanked "Rosina" for being his friend and for her "lovely letters," promised he'd pray for her, but begged off on an apparent request for a get-together.

"...there are alot (sic) of things that can never be, such as, the two of us getting together," the letter read. It was signed: "David B. (SAM)."

Tricycle rider struck by car

Three-year-old Carl Hartman of 560 W. I St., Ontario, today is in fair condition at Pomona Valley Community Hospital where he is being treated for injuries sustained in a traffic accident Wednesday.

The child, according to investigating officers, rode a tricycle into the path of a car on J Street west of Vine Avenue in Ontario about 6:20 p.m.

The driver of the car, Francis R. Rowlands, 52, 324 W. I St., Ontario, told officers he did not see the child ride into the street because the sun was in his eyes.

W.H. in drive to save energy plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House mounted a major lobbying campaign today to try to salvage President Carter's troubled energy program in the Senate.

The President and Energy Secretary James Schlesinger sought to persuade undecided senators to side with the administration in a showdown vote scheduled for tonight on natural-gas pricing.

Carter wants to continue price controls on natural gas, but advocates of a rival plan to lift the controls claimed they would win by a narrow margin.

Schlesinger cancelled a scheduled appearance before a House panel on another energy matter today to try to drum up support for the Carter plan in the Senate.

And President Carter was reportedly busy phoning senators to personally appeal for their support.

One key senator on energy legislation, Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., met with Carter at the White House today and said he urged the President to "find some middle ground" on the natural gas issue.

The President was noncommittal, Randolph said. But, he noted, "I think he's worried," not only about the natural gas vote but on the fate of the entire energy program in the Senate.

Although Carter's plan passed the House nearly intact in August, it has been picked apart, piece by piece.

Guerrillas fire on Israeli gunboats

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Palestinian guerrillas claimed today that their coastal guns fired during the night on Israeli gunboats that for six days have been trying to blockade the Palestinian-held port of Tyre, on the south Lebanese coast.

"Long-range coastal guns opened up on enemy gunboats for the first time after midnight," a Palestinian spokesman said. "The Israeli navy has been trying to blockade Tyre for the last six days."

Palestinian officials said the gunboats were not hit and did not return the fire. But they said the firing apparently forced them out beyond the range of the shore guns.

Tyre, 12 miles north of the Israeli border, is Lebanon's fourth largest city. It was left under the control of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine last year after Syria's military intervention halted the civil war between right-wing Christians and an alliance of Palestinians and leftist Lebanese Moslems.

A spokesman for the Popular Front claimed at least four Israeli gunboats sailed "dangerously close" to the Tyre coast, prompting the Palestinian firing.

Palestinian guns drove off another gunboat formation that approached the coastal town of Nakoura, several hundred yards north of the frontier, the spokesman said.

Lebanese provincial authorities and the Palestinians both reported that Israel moved more troops and tanks across the border deeper into southeast Lebanon.

Spokesmen for both factions said at least 24 Israeli tanks and armored personnel carriers crossed the frontier and moved into the Christian villages of Khoura and Deir Mimas.

Deir Mimas is about a mile from the border and north of Kfar Kila, where Israeli forces set up tank and artillery positions on hilltops Tuesday, according to the Lebanese government.

Police said the method used in Tuesday's robbery was similar to one used in a robbery Monday in which a woman stole nearly $2,000.

Gasoline tank fires probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Transportation Department announced Wednesday it has launched a major investigation of fuel tank fires in all subcompact cars sold in this country.

The action follows charges by Ralph Nader and others that in past models of the Ford Pinto, the gasoline tanks were located in a hazardous position.

The department's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said it has begun a crash-test program to measure the possible fire hazard of small car fuel tanks.

Agency administrator Joan Claybrook said full-sized autos also will be tested for comparative purposes.

"Because automobile fires are among the most terrifying safety hazards anyone can encounter, we intend to pursue this matter quickly," said Ms. Claybrook. "We will find out whether a safety defect exists, and if so, what we can do to correct it."

The agency said that an initial survey revealed that since 1975 a total of 26 Pintos have been involved in fatal fires claiming 35 lives.

The charges that triggered the investigation claimed that 500 persons had died in Pinto fires since the car first came out in 19/0. But agency officials say they have no figures to substantiate that.

The charges were made in the September-October issue of Mother Jones, a West Coast-based magazine with 150,000 subscribers.

The article's author, Mark Dowie, claimed Ford President Lee Iacocca was in a rush to start producing the Pinto in 1970. Dowie said the company ignored tests showing the tank was susceptible to gas leakage after an accident because it was too close to the rear bumper.

Consumer advocate Nader backed the article's charges, claiming, "this is corporate callousness at the highest level of Ford Motor Co." He said Ford should recall all three million Pintos with vulnerable fuel tanks.

The article said that Ford had modified 1977 Pinto models and they would not be subject to recall.

A Ford official characterized the allegations as "distortions and half truths."

Ms. Claybrook, who prefers that designation, emphasized that her agency has made no determination that one make or model of car is more fire-prone than any other. She said the investigation is to identify such problems.

Grape pickers needed

Pickers are needed for the grape harvest in Cucamonga.

Persons wanting full- or part-time work during the harvest may contact the Ontario employment office or a farm labor trailer at Archibald Avenue and Foothill Boulevard in Cucamonga.

The above-average grape crop will provide jobs until the middle of October, said officials.

For more information, persons may phone 989-3513 or 986-3811.

Expansion of Art Fair gets extension

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont Planning Commission Tuesday granted Griswold's a 45-day extension on its request to conduct its weekend Art Fair in an area adjacent to Indian Hill Boulevard.

"The request to hold the fair along Indian Hill was a temporary request," said Enid Douglass. "Let's act on that premise."

The staff granted Alton Sanford, owner of Griswold's Old School House (GOSH) a temporary permit this summer to conduct the fair around the United California Bank building and adjacent to the theater and Ramon's restaurant while construction was being done in the main part of the complex.

The neighbors, represented by Allen Wicker and Steve Ritchie, agreed to the temporary arrangement as an accommodation to Sanford.

Both appeared at the commission meeting Tuesday to request a limit on the use of the Indian Hill frontage.

"Our neighborhood is already fragile," said Wicker. "We can't see any benefit to us for cooperating. We don't see any personal gain for us."

By a 7-0 vote, the commissioners agreed to the extension of 45 days, or until grass has grown in the area already approved for the Art Fair location.

Then, the commission members said, the fair must retreat to the areas previously approved along Berkeley Avenue and south of the GOSH shopping center, plus an area around the bank building.

Craig McManigal, attorney for Griswold's, asked that the commission schedule a second hearing after the 45-day period to consider a request to hold the Air Fair in front of the new hotel addition being constructed.

Mary Ellen Kilsby, president of the Claremont school board, told the Planning Commission the school district has engaged an architect to draw up plans for renovation and landscaping of the San Antonio Continuation High School site at San Jose and College avenues.

"Enrollment is declining at the school, but we are committed to this program and this location, at least in the foreseeable future," said Mrs. Kilsby.

Richard S. Kirkendall, superintendent of schools, said the buildings on the site do meet the state school standards and will be included in the future design of the campus.

School trustees said they were aware of concern in the neighborhood about present landscaping.

"But we feel it would be an unsound investment to spend some $5,000 to improve landscaping which might be just temporary," said Kirkendall.

In response to a question from a commissioner about the type and extent of landscaping planned, Mrs. Kilsby said the schools did not have the funds that private businesses could spend on beautification.

"We plan to spend about $250,000 on the project which should be completed in a year," she added.

A.L. board hires 2 new administrators

Despite protests from teachers, the Alta Loma school board has approved the hiring of two new administrators.

Teachers objected strongly at this week's board meeting to the hiring of two additional vice principals in the district. The vice principals would be assigned to Alta Loma Junior High School and Carnelian Elementary School.

The Alta Loma Educators Association (ALEA) — which is still bogged down in a lengthy contract dispute with school trustees — voiced strong reservations about hiring the vice principals.

"ALEA is opposed to hiring further administrative personnel until such time as a job description for the proposed position is filed and a needs assessment is completed," said a letter sent from ALEA to the board.

The teachers' group added that, "Proper utilization of present personnel would eliminate the need for additional administrative help at this time."

Verne Mistretta, ALEA president, said the group especially opposes the hiring of a second vice principal for Alta Loma Junior High. She said the number of students — 725 — does not justify a second vice principal.

Mrs. Mistretta admitted Carnelian, which has no vice principal now, probably needs one. However, the ALEA would like a needs assessment taken to determine the issue, she said.

"We need counselors more than vice principals," she noted. "They are closer to the kids."

A district spokesman claimed the rapidly growing Alta Loma district badly needs the new vice principals. "There are 920 kids at Carnelian, which is the largest elementary school in San Bernardino County," said one official.

Enrollment has increased dramatically at Alta Loma Junior High and Carnelian, the spokesman related.

The board agreed with administrators and approved the new hirings. Trustees also approved the hiring of a "floating" counselor who would travel from school to school.

Route 66 damaged by flash floods

Desert road may be abandoned

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

Flash floods that destroyed three bridges and caused heavy road damage to a former national highway in the desert area between Barstow and Needles Sept. 10 may lead to the abandonment of the 100-mile stretch of road, San Bernardino County supervisors indicated Monday.

Officials reported a 27-mile strip of former U. S. Route 66 was severely damaged by the flood waters. And rebuilding the road would cost taxpayers from $87,000 to $122,000, they indicated.

Supervisor James Mayfield, who represents the desert area, said it would be unfair to county taxpayers to pay for the repairs since most of the travelers on the route were from other counties.

He asked other supervisors to approve a resolution which calls for abandonment of the road unless state officials agree to pay for the repairs.

Mayfield charged that San Bernardino County gets treated unfairly by the state when funds for local transportation projects are allocated.

Since San Bernardino County is more sparsely populated than many other counties, it doesn't get funds on the same basis as the more populated counties, he charged.

Mayfield said such a funding method was unfair since many travelers on San Bernardino County roads are from other counties.

"This is the point to draw the line and indicate that we're not going to ask local taxpayers to subsidize regional transportation problems," he said.

Mayfield asked John Shone, county transportation director, to ask state transportation officials for financial help in rebuilding the desert road.

Should state officials refuse, then Mayfield suggested the county abandon the road and give it to the state for maintenance.

Shone said that to detour the traffic on the highway — if it were to be closed — would cost motorists $100,000 in extra transportation costs.

But many motorists in the area use a newer federal highway, Route 40, for traveling, noted officials.

Coordinating council to meet

Luncheon reservations at $3 may be made by phoning 623-6433 before Friday. There will be no charge for those who do not wish to eat but want to attend the meeting.

Political arena

Members of the WEST END DEMOCRATIC CLUB voted to support President Carter on ratification of the Panama Canal Treaty.

This action was taken at a general membership meeting Sept. 12.

Members agreed to lobby elected national and state officials to seek support on the issue.

ASSEMBLYMAN BILL MCVITTIE, D-65th Dist., Upland, has a bill on Governor Brown's desk which will protect property buyers from illegally divided land.

"We've been seeing unwary buyers of raw land later realize they've been had," said McVittie. "They put their hard-earned money in property, possibly for a retirement home or recreational retreat, then find it has not been divided so that it complies with the Subdivision Map Act."

McVittie's bill, A. B. 815, has the support of the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors, the California Land Title Association and the California Realtors Association.

It requires that after Jan. 1, 1978, the seller of property must include in the sale contract information indicating compliance or non-compliance with the Subdivision Map Act. It further provides that if the parcel does not comply with the act or prior law, or is not subject to exemption, the buyer will be able to recover costs and may void the sale.

SEN. H. L. "BILL" RICHARDSON, R-25th Dist., Arcadia, has introduced legislation that would punish any person upon a second or subsequent forcible rape conviction with life imprisonment without parole.

"There were 9,552 reported rapes in 1976. That's an increase of 37 per cent over 1970," Richardson said. "And the figure would undoubtedly be much higher if we could take into account the many cases that go unreported."

Under the new determinate-sentence law, forcible rape is punishable by three, four or five years in state prison with an automatic one-third sentence reduction if the convict commits no serious offense while incarcerated.

Three years are added to the sentence for each prior violent felony up to a maximum total of five years. In other words, Richardson said, the longest a violent rapist can be kept in prison for a repeat conviction is six years and eight months.

"Society cannot risk putting repeat rapists back on the street," said Richardson. "After their second conviction, they should be locked up where they can never again victimize the innocent.

RICHARDSON also introduced legislation that would require automatic bail increases for certain repeat offenders.

"Prison authorities told me that at least 70 to 80 percent of the inmates in the state's prisons have prior convictions," he said. "This simply shows that the judicial system must deal with career-minded criminals."

Under his bill, individuals being held for murder, rape, assault or child molesting, and having previously been convicted of any of those offenses, automatically would have their bail doubled.

ASSEMBLYMAN JOSEPH B. MONTOYA, D-60th Dist., La Puente, has introduced a bill, A. B. 1083, designed to improve high school driver training.

It establishes a reimbursement certificate program providing high school students the option of using their state assistance for driver training in public or private schools.

"My legislation will provide students in private schools the opportunity of receiving individual instruction from full-time professionals. This will reduce the waiting time and ensuing hardships many students experience waiting their turn to enroll in public programs," said Montoya.

Montoya said the program will hold down the expense to taxpayers for increasing costs of public school programs which "are top heavy in administration."

Noise money won by L.A.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — This city has won a 2½-year court battle for $9.6 million in federal funds to help pay for a noise buffer zone north of Los Angeles International Airport.

The U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia ordered the Federal Aviation Administration to reimburse the Department of Airports for the money it cost to construct the buffer zone. Tuesday's ruling upheld a federal appeals court decision that the city was entitled to the money.

Female cop is 'hooker'—case dismissed

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A judge has dismissed a sexual assault charge against a man arrested by an undercover policewoman, saying officers "want to go out there and pose as hookers."

"If you want to go out there and pose as a lady of the evening — that you are available for money, it is consent," Milwaukee County Judge Ralph Gorenstein ruled Tuesday.

Dist. Atty. E. Michael McCann said he would appeal, calling Gorenstein's reasoning "absolutely outrageous."

Gorenstein dismissed a fourth-degree sexual assault charge filed against Phillip C. Minor, 23, who was accused of indecently touching an undercover policewoman.

Policewoman Christine Leonard was standing at a street corner early Saturday, posing as a prostitute when she "observed the defendant reach around her shoulder and grab her left breast, kissing her at the same time," the police complaint said.

She "never gave the defendant consent to touch her," the complaint said.

"Those women want to go out there and pose as hookers," Gorenstein said. "That's the type of thing they're going to have to do. A battery is something else. But a touching of this type is implied consent."

He compared the circumstances to those of two other cases before his court involving "ordinary women who were going about their business, and they have a right not to be molested."

"There was no harm done here besides touching," the judge ruled.

"I severely disapprove of sexual abuse and rape," he said. "But I don't think policewomen posing as prostitutes ... can claim they didn't give consent to the touching of their breasts."

Bet against moustache

NEW YORK (AP) — Was a moustache the key in the Dewey-Truman presidential campaign of 1948?

Oddsmaker Jimmy "the Greek" Snyder thinks so, and he says he won $170,000 on that belief.

In an article in the October issue of Penthouse magazine, Snyder said he got his first inkling Dewey might be in trouble when his older sister told him girls don't like men with moustaches.

After computing that women made up 52 per cent of the electorate, Snyder said, he hired three women to stand outside a supermarket and interview 500 women. The poll found 122 for Dewey and 347 against.

Snyder said he took some further political soundings, then put $10,000 on Truman at 17-to-1 odds.

Telly Savalas may appear in murder trial of boy, 15

MIAMI (AP) — Telly Savalas, star of television's "Kojak," has been ordered to appear in court in the murder trial of a 15-year-old boy whose lawyer is using TV violence for his defense.

Circuit Court Judge Paul Baker ordered Savalas to be in court next Monday in case the court decides his testimony would be relevant in the trial of Ronald Zamora, charged with killing an 82-year-old socialite. He is being tried as an adult.

Defense attorney Ellis Rubin has said Zamora's constant exposure to TV crime shows such as "Kojak," "Policewoman," and a TV film depicting the Charles Manson mass murders were responsible for "diseasing his mind and impairing his behavioral controls."

Rubin said the testimony is necessary because "Kojak" is Zamora's favorite crime show.

Savalas could not be reached immediately for comment.

"It was special to him (Zamora) and he was copying what he saw," said Rubin. He said Savalas "does have something to contribute and is familiar with the effects of TV violence ..."

Although he ordered Savalas to appear in court, Baker expressed reservations Tuesday that the actor could lend anything to the trial.

"What does he know about this case?" Baker asked Rubin at a pre-trial conference. "I don't think his personal opinion is pertinent. Has he met or ever talked with the defendant?"

Whether the actor testifies will be determined next week after he gives a statement to the defense, authorities said. Baker said he would read Savalas' comments and then decide whether the testimony will be needed and permitted.

Zamora and Darrell Agrella, 14, have been charged with burglarizing Miami Beach home of Elinor Haggart on June 4 and killing her when she returned home and surprised them. Agrella is to be tried separately Nov. 7.

Savalas spoke out against violence on television last weekend during a "look-alike" promotional contest held here last week. But he said the particular "Kojak" episode earlier described by Rubin did not exist.

Treaty opponents to spend $1 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservative groups are concentrating on about 30 "key" members of the Senate and probably will spend upwards of a million dollars in an effort to block ratification of the Panama Canal treaty.

The campaign, involving mass media advertising and an effort to bury uncommitted lawmakers under an avalanche of anti-treaty mail, is being mounted as the Senate Foreign Relations Committee prepares to hold hearings on the treaty next week.

In a "dear friend" form letter signed by Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, the Conservative Caucus is seeking contributions to defray what it calls "quite frankly ... the biggest financial risk" in its history. The letters carry a "United States Senate" letterhead but are printed and mailed at private expense.

With a goal of $300,000 by Sept. 30, the group hopes to have $475,000 by the time the treaty comes to a vote next year.

That may seem like a lot of money, the letter concedes, "but not if we are serious about defeating the President of the United States and almost the entire liberal political establishment in America."

Accompanying the letter is a detailed "fact sheet" on the Panama Canal, preaddressed postcards to be returned to senators and other postcards to be sent to friends, all urging defeat of the treaty.

The American Conservative Union, meanwhile, is running its own mail campaign, with Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., signing the letter. It also contains an appeal for contributions, but ACU spokesmen say the emphasis is on the treaty issue rather than soliciting money.

The ACU already has invested $400,000 in its anti-treaty drive and plans to spend at least $50,000 more on radio spots and a television documentary. Meanwhile, it has a number of other projects in the works and is coordinating a loosely-joined "Emergency Coalition to Save the Panama Canal," made up of about a dozen organizations with a total membership of at least 10 million, according to ACU legislative director Gary Jarmin.

The effect of the anti-treaty blitz, organizers hope, will be a deluge of mail and messages pouring into the offices of senators — in particular those who are uncommitted or, in the judgment of anti-treaty strategists, might ultimately decide to vote no.

Most important among these are Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., and Minority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., whose own decisions could have important influence on party colleagues.

Baker has been singled out for special attention because he is up for re-election next year in a state where the canal treaty could become the major campaign issue. Already he has been confronted by large newspaper ads declaring that "Senator Baker alone can save the Panama Canal."

There actually are two treaties, but they are considered indivisible. One calls for the United States to relinquish sovereignty over the Canal Zone to Panama by the year 2000. The other would always permit the United States to militarily ensure the neutrality of the canal.

In addition to Baker, about 17 other senators whose terms expire this year are also targeted, including Sens. Charles Percy, R-Ill., Clifford Case, R-N.J., J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., William Hathaway, D-Maine, Joseph Biden, D-Del., Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., Sam Nunn, D-Ga., Wendell Anderson, D-Minn., and Walter Huddleston, D-Ky.

All of these are seen by the anti-canal strategists as having special political problems that have helped to keep them uncommitted so far on the treaty, but who will have to make a difficult decision at some point.

The campaign also is aimed at some lawmakers already declared on the treaty or who may now be uncommitted but are not likely, in the strategists' view, to vote against them in the end.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., is an example of a senator in the first category, and Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, is among those in the second. But both are being targeted because sentiment in their states is believed to be especially strong against the treaty.

Other states where conservative strategists say they have found strong support for keeping the canal under American control include Hawaii, Alaska, Texas, Kentucky and a number of Southern states.

Still other senators, such as Dick Clark, D-Iowa, have been written off by the anti-treaty faction even though he must stand for re-election. The same is true of Sens. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., and Edward Brooke, R-Mass.

"The best we can do with the liberals is to keep them uncommitted as long as possible, because it neutralizes them on the issue," said one campaign planner.

But, said another, "regardless of how some of these senators may feel, they may not be so eager to vote for a treaty after they receive 200,000 pieces of mail opposing it."

Those opposed to the treaty say they have at least 31 senators opposed or inclined that way, three fewer than needed to prevent ratification. They also claim there are 10 senators undecided.

But Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., assistant majority leader, said Tuesday his latest headcount showed those favoring or leaning in favor to be in the "high 60s," with those opposed or tilting that way in the "low 20s."

Hold man linked to murder conspiracy

An Ontario man wanted for investigation of conspiracy to commit murder in Tulare County was arrested Tuesday by members of the San Bernardino County Sheriff's narcotics task force and the Ontario police in Ontario.

The arrest warrant issued by the Tulare County Superior Court for Thomas Albina Acosta, set bail at $400,000.

Further details of the arrest and the incident in Tulare County were unavailable this morning.

Body found in canyon identified

The man found shot to death execution style in San Gabriel Canyon Monday was identified Tuesday night as Stephen Michael Herrera, 27, of Azusa.

Herrera's body was found along Highway 39, about two miles north of Morris Dam north of Azusa. It was spotted by a passing motorist. Herrera had been shot once in the back of the head.

Sheriff's homicide Lt. David Hagthrop said there have been no arrests in the slaying, and the reason Herrera was killed has not been determined.

Car flips in crash; driver hurt

A car going east on the Pomona Freeway Tuesday morning collided with a second car west of Archibald Avenue near Ontario, causing the first car to crash through a center divider and become airborne before overturning.

The driver, Devalle Ferguson Henry, 21, Riverside, was taken to Ontario Community Hospital where his condition is reported as fair.

Henry told officers his hand slipped off the steering wheel. His car struck the back of a car driven by Darrell Alton, 61, of La Puente, said highway patrolmen.

HOW MUCH LONGER? — This question is uppermost in the minds of these steelworkers as they leave mill in Youngstown, Ohio, after an eight-hour shift. They are among 5,000 who will be unemployed after the plant's production is moved to Indiana Harbor.

Carter worried by steel cutbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter wants to meet with representatives of the steel industry and unions about cutbacks that are leaving thousands of workers wondering about their jobs, a Pennsylvania senator said today.

Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., said after a group of Republicans had breakfast with Carter at the White House that the President said the latest factory closing, in Youngstown, Ohio, "concerned him very deeply."

The Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., an industrial mainstay for 75 years in the Ohio city, announced Monday it would cut 5,000 of its present 8,950 jobs within three months.

Heinz said similar problems faced the steel industry in his state and that the President "has expressed a desire and willingness to meet with the steel industry — management and labor — over the closings."

Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska, assistant Republican leader in the Senate, said Carter told the Senate group that he was "very disturbed about Youngstown."

Multimillion-dollar lawsuit

Documents tell of FBI spying

WASHINGTON (AP) — By financial standards, Informer No. 505 was a real go-getter.

No. 505 earned $11,100 from the FBI in 1973 and a total of $46,383 over seven years ending in 1976.

What did the FBI get from No. 505 to warrant the payments? "Approximately 55 leaflets and pamphlets regarding Socialist Workers Party activities, approximately 36 SWP newsletters," financial statements, membership lists and schedules of party activities.

On the other hand, Informer No. 28 apparently told the FBI hardly anything it wanted to know about the small Trotskyite political party. No. 28 received only a single $5-payment in 1966.

Those details emerged from FBI documents made public by the Political Rights Defense Fund, which is financing the party's multimillion-dollar lawsuit accusing the FBI of illegal harrassment and disruption of legitimate political activities.

During the course of the four-year lawsuit, lawyers asked the FBI for details about money paid to informers to spy on the party. The FBI was required to provide the information in a procedure which allowed the informers to be designated by code numbers to protect their identities.

The documents show that the FBI paid more than $1.6 million during a 16-year period to 301 informers who joined the party or its affiliate, the Young Socialist Alliance, as a way of gaining more information about party activities.

The bureau has acknowledged having 309 informers who were members of one group or the other, and the documents show that all but eight of them were paid.

The FBI has acknowledged that more than 1,000 other informers spied on the party without joining it. The bureau has remained silent about money paid to those informers.

Informer No. 505, according to the documents, was the highest-paid of the list of 301 informers and earned the most in a single year. No. 505's annual earnings from the bureau began with about $3,500 in 1970, the year he began working, and rose to the high of $11,100 in 1973. His earnings dropped to $2,800 last year.

The records show that the other informers usually were paid from $2,000 to $5,000 annually for several years.

All of the payments were in cash. "One reason for cash payments was security," an FBI official said. "You couldn't write a check and sign it 'John Doe, FBI' without jeopardizing the informant's security."

Failed to get $25,000 re-enlistment bonus

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Capt. Charles Fentheway, an Air Force doctor, was supposed to get a nice bonus for re-enlisting for two years. But he didn't know about Catch 2292, or Form 2292, as the Air Force calls it.

When Fentheway went to pick up his $25,000 bonus from the finance officer at F.E. Warren Air Force Base in Cheyenne, he was told he neglected to sign the form obligating the Air Force to pay $12,500 for each year of his re-enlistment. That would be Form 2292, a form Fentheway says he never knew existed.

What Fentheway had signed was only his part of the agreement to serve the two years, he was told.

A federal judge on Tuesday ordered the 30-year-old surgeon released from active duty. Fentheway had been in the service three years as of June 20.

Judge Clarence Brimmer ruled that the re-enlistment contract was impossible to perform because the Air Force had refused to "cut through their red tape."

The Air Force withheld comment but was expected to appeal the judge's ruling.

"They're the ones that were supposed to know regulations," Fentheway said.

He said he was told he could sign a pre-dated Form 2292 so he could receive his bonus.

"That sounded a little fishy to me," he said, "and there's no way I wanted to get into legal complications."

Fentheway found a civilian job in Cheyenne, his hometown. He filed suit against the Air Force for breach of contract, seeking a discharge from the service.

Fentheway was ready to begin work today as a surgeon on the staff of the civilian DePaul Hospital in Cheyenne.

"I have no sorrow for leaving the Air Force," he said.

Body of Palomares Park murder victim identified

The murder victim found beaten to death early Saturday morning in Palomares Park has been identified as Dennis Leon Nash, a 32-year-old Indiana man who had a recent history of trouble, Pomona police said today.

A coroner's spokesman said the victim was beaten to death with a blunt object in a savage attack on his head and face.

Nash, a mechanic, was traced through the rented uniform he wore at the time he was killed. Detective Archie Johnson said the clothing was traced to an Anaheim uniform company, then to a Ford garage in Monrovia where Nash formerly worked, and then to La Verne where he had been living with friends from Indiana. He moved from the La Verne residence a few days before, Johnson said, and had worked at a La Verne garage.

Investigators said Nash, who had been in the area only since May, had had several fights recently, one of which placed him in the hospital.

He also had been arrested on a drunken driving charge, they said, and it was the comparison of the fingerprints lifted from the cadaver with the ones on file with the police department which confirmed Nash's identity.

Investigators said that Friday, Nash's employer advanced him some money against his next paycheck. He was not seen alive again by acquaintances.

Police said it appeared likely that Nash had gotten into a dispute with someone — a dispute which led to his being beaten to death.

Doctors who are confronted with deciding whether they should withhold medication from patients they consider terminally ill may soon be getting guidelines.

Los Angeles County Supervisor Baxter Ward says he will ask his colleagues next Tuesday to form a commission of doctors, lawyers, theologians, social scientists and laymen to work out a set of such principles.

The issue came up at a day-long hearing Wednesday, called by Ward, at which the doctors said they had nothing but their own ideas to go by right now.

Dr. Sol Bernstein, director of the County-USC Medical Center, said 17 patients died in county facilities during the past six months after doctors ordered "heroic" life preserving measures withheld.

Such actions are known as "no code" orders.

In at least two of the 17 cases the patients were never consulted, the medical director testified.

Ward contends the patient should have a right to decide whether he wants to live or die, regardless of his condition or the extent of his pain.

Richard Corlin, president-elect of the county Medical Association, said the "no code" orders should be issued only after consultation with the patient and that the orders are used when medication would only prolong disease or suffering with no chance to save a life.

"There should be guidelines," Bernstein agreed, "but they should be broadly stated to give some leeway. We also need some guidelines on how such decisions should be reached and how the orders should be implemented."

Bernstein said such guidelines would protect not only the patients but also the physicians.

Lance Brisson, assistant public guardian, says "no code" cases are "as old as medicine itself. Since ancient times doctors have had to make decisions on whether they should continue to treat patients whom they felt were going to die anyway. But there are times when the doctors are wrong and prolonged treatment might save the life of the patient."

The so called "right to die" controversy surfaced last month after Dr. James Corbin issued a "no code" order for Monrovia patient Raymond Oden, 64. A subsequent inquest showed that Oden was never consulted about withholding medication, and that, in fact, his life could have been saved through continued treatment.

Corbin testified at the hearing that he based his order on his observation.

"This man was on his way out when he came in. He was definitely progressing downhill," he insisted. "There was nothing else I could do about it."

CHRISTIAN ART

Dr. Charles C. Gill, Claremont, stands beside two window scenes he created from cut and polished rock which are being shown in the Louise Roberts Room of Guild Hall at the Claremont United Church of Christ, Congregational. The large window on the right, measuring 4 by 6 feet in six sections, shows Christ in Gethsemane. The 2 by 3 foot window to the left shows Christ on the cross and is entitled Crucified. Dr. Gill cut and ground the rocks for three years then spent five months cementing them to plate glass to create the art pieces.

Supervisors still debating whether to obtain reservoir

The Morris Dam, seven-billion-gallon reservoir north of Azusa, continued to get a kicking around this week as the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors debated whether to accept it, free of charge, from the Metropolitan Water District.

The dam, 12 miles northwest of Pomona, was characterized by Supervisor Kenneth Hahn as a white elephant which the MWD wants to unload on the county.

It was pictured as a highly desirable recreational area and a new source of water supply to the San Gabriel Valley by Supervisor Peter Schabarum who represents the district.

The dam has been serving the MWD as an emergency reservoir for the past 40 years; its water to be used only in the event that something went wrong with the rest of the MWD system.

There has never been any need to use water from the dam — in fact, an estimated two billion gallons of water escape to the sea annually — and now the MWD says it has developed other sources of water supply and no longer needs the dam.

Moreover, an issue has developed over the rights to the water and the MWD claims the deadlock can best be solved if the county takes over the operation.

Supervisors Baxter Ward and Hahn contend the MWD can release the water by simply applying to the state Department of Water Resources in working out an agreement with the San Gabriel Valley Protective Association as to the jurisdictional issue.

Hahn contended that it would cost the county $3.2 million at the start to take over the operation of the dam, and even then the county would not be assured that the dam was safe against earthquakes.

"This may not only be a white elephant," he declared, "it may well become a disaster."

But A.E. Bruington, chief engineer of the Los Angeles County Flood Control District, assured the supervisors that the county would have to take over the dam if the study proved it to be seismically unsound.

He said part of the cost of the takeover included $250,000 to make sure that the dam is structurally sound. While the survey was taking place the MWD would assume responsibility for any liabilities.

Bruington said the dam would be part of a large foothill recreational program which would involve two other reservoirs in the mountains above Azusa.

While he admitted parking was not adequate, he said there were plans to acquire other areas for that purpose.

The flood control engineer said acquisition of the dam was highly desirable for flood control as well as water storage. He said that while in the wintertime the dam could prevent flooding in the area, at other times it could be used for such recreation as boating and fishing.

Bruington said the MWD had been wanting to sell the dam to the county in the past. At one point, he said, the water district wanted $10 million for it.

Schabarum contended that the whole controversy over Morris Dam has made the issue muddied.

Hahn insisted that he was "not trying to roadblock this but we need more time to get to the truth."

The supervisors instructed Bruington to prepare for them a summary of costs and benefits and to return to the board for final action in two weeks.

Chino barrio recreation center plans OK'd

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

Plans for a new $140,000 recreation center in the Chino barrio were approved by the City Council this week.

A proposal to reduce the size of the long-awaited center at an earlier council meeting due to a lack of funds had been rejected by council members two weeks ago.

Tuesday's revised proposal adopted by the council unanimously will restore the building to close to its originally planned size.

Construction of the 2,800 square-foot building should begin as soon as bids are received and awarded, the council was told.

The building will include a multi-use area, a kitchen, office space, restrooms and storage facilities. Up to 200 persons will be able to use the facility at any one time.

The building will be located at newly-created Monte Vista Park.

In a related matter Tuesday night, a Chino community leader criticized the city's recreational programs for allegedly not serving the needs of barrio youths.

Tony Vicario, chairman of the Chino Community Action Council (CAC), said that although his group was very pleased with the approval of plans for the new recreation center in the barrio, they were still concerned over the inadequacy of programs for troubled youth.

Criticizing staffing and programs at a temporary recreation center now operating in the barrio, Vicario claimed some youths were being ignored.

"The recreation center that now exists in the community is not adequately serving the youths," he said. "The needs in our barrio are not being met."

Vicario said several incidents at the center between staff workers and CAC members were causing friction between the two groups.

The CAC generally represents a more activist viewpoint in the Chino barrio.

"For some reason the Recreation and Parks Department is leaving out barrio youths from its programs," Vicario charged. He said his group was willing to cooperate with the city in getting positive programs started for gang members and other youths.

"We're more than willing to help. Give us a chance," he said. "I myself used to be a gang member. I know the types of positive steps that need to be taken. Let's get some of these guys off of the street and into some of these programs."

Chino Mayor Bob McLeod said he agreed with the need to get barrio youths involved in recreation programs. He defended recreation and park workers, including recreation and parks director Jack Anderson. He said they were doing their best under the financial conditions.

Saying that the temporary recreation center now being used in the barrio was inadequate for citizens' needs, McLeod said the new center will allow all persons from children to senior citizens to have their needed programs.

"We need your input as much as anyone elses," McLeod told Vicario. "We need help on it. All we're doing is furnishing four square walls. What's done with it is up to those in the community."

Mexican orphans to visit La Verne

Efforts to seek new understanding in ecumenical-international relationships is one of the goals of a local church youth group.

This effort will be demonstrated this weekend when the La Verne Church of the Brethren hosts 35 people from Casa de la Salvatierra, a Roman Catholic orphanage in Tecate, Mexico.

In the group will be 27 girls ranging in age from 5 to 11 and several adults. They will arrive on Friday.

Friendship between the two organizations began last April when the church youth group traveled to Tecate to participate in a work project at the orphanage.

During spring vacation, the youths and their advisers — 50 people in all — scraped and painted buildings, plastered, placed tile and repaired electrical wiring.

Working and eating meals together, as well as living among the members of the orphanage community, enabled the La Verne teenagers to develop close relationships with orphaned and abandoned girls.

Juan Gonzalez, a Tijuana businessman who oversees the orphanage's finances, will accompany the girls, as will his daughter, Theresa, a dance instructor from San Diego, and other members of his family.

Activities planned for this weekend include a visit to the Los Angeles County Fair on Saturday, and entertainment for the church congregation by the orphanage group at 7 p.m. Saturday in Fellowship Hall.

The children will sing and dance for the church members.

Church members are hosting the visitors in their homes over the weekend.

Dr. Joseph Hough, dean of the Claremont School of Theology, will speak at the 10:30 a.m. service Sunday at the church. The group from the orphanage will take part.

Butter churners will be crowned

The best of the butter churners will be crowned Friday in a special contest at the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona.

Post entries are accepted in the 2:30 p.m. activity, where the fair provides the milk and the contestants get to take home about two pounds of butter.

Attendance Wednesday at the world's largest county fair was 42,431, up from a 1976 Wednesday figure of 33,968. A total of 370,542 persons have visited the fair since it opened last Friday. On the first six days of the 1976 fair, 343,563 visitors went through the gates.

The free Grandstand show at 8 p.m. presents the "Up With People" program.

Carlos Avilas y Sus Gauchas, Argentine dancers, will highlight programs in the Mexican Village where other entertainment will be by Mariachi Juvenil de Monterrey of Mexico and Esplendor Azteca.

Reviews on disability payments approved

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors will focus its attention on former employees who are retired on disability but work on full-time jobs elsewhere.

Chairman Ed Edelman says it "doesn't seem consistent" with the philosophy of retirement to allow such persons to draw a double salary.

"It galls me no end seeing some of our employees on disability working full time on outside jobs," he added. "I think we ought to look into this."

At his suggestion, the supervisors voted to ask the county's retirement board to make periodic reviews as to whether some of those who draw disability have not recovered or are still entitled to it.

He also asked Chief Administrative Officer Harry L. Hufford for a list of the employees currently on disability benefits and to make some recommendations in three weeks on how to proceed.

MSAC employees submit salary increase request

A 5 percent boost plus $50 a month is sought in salary increases by non-certified employees of Mt. San Antonio College.

The request was submitted to the college board of trustees Wednesday by the California School Employees Association (CSEA).

The trustees received the proposal without comment. A counter-proposal is expected in November.

The CSEA request is the last of three now under consideration by the trustees who are trying to come up with a uniform initial contract in collective bargaining for all employees.

The teachers submitted their proposal last November, but the board has delayed action until all requests were in. The teachers are asking for a cost-of-living increase plus 3 percent.

Also under consideration is the request of the American Federation of School, County and Municipal Employees who want a $135 a month across-the-board pay raise plus additional money for long-time employees.

All three proposals call for contracts that are retroactive to July 1

The air bag controversy

A Carter administration decision to require the installation of air bags or "passive" seat belts on all new cars by 1985 has run into unexpected trouble on Capitol Hill.

Although it is still unlikely that opponents will be able to overturn the order by Secretary of Transportation Brock Adams, resistance to his air bag mandate — both from Congress and from the public — has been stronger than anticipated.

"It's going to be a battle," a spokesman for Adams conceded. "Things are tougher than we first expected."

House and Senate committees are holding hearings this month on resolutions introduced by Rep. E.G. (Bud) Shuster, R-Pa., and Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., disapproving the Adams order.

More than a third of the members of the House have signed up as cosponsors of Shuster's resolution, while Griffin's office reports "surprising" public support for the senator's effort to block the air bag ruling.

However, the odds remain on Adams' side. His order will take effect automatically unless both the House and Senate pass resolutions of disapproval by mid-October.

House leaders, who generally support the Transportation secretary on this issue, can probably keep Shuster's resolution from reaching the floor for a vote by the deadline, while senators favoring the air bag mandate can almost certainly filibuster the Griffin resolution to death if need be.

The air bag controversy pits two giants of the lobbying business — the auto industry and insurance companies — against one another. Conservatives who resent "Big Brother's" attempts to save drivers from their own carelessness have lined up against the Adams decision, while consumer groups and labor unions — including the United Auto Workers — support the ruling.

Much of the debate in Congress is likely to focus on the validity of DOT's estimates that equipping new cars with air bags or "passive" seat belts like those on some Volkswagen Rabbits would save more than 9,000 lives a year and more than 10 times as many injuries.

Opponents argue that air bags, which only inflate in front-end crashes, are not as effective as properly used lap-shoulder belts, and that a vigorous campaign to encourage voluntary belt usage would not only save car buyers money but provide greater protection as well.

The difficulty with this argument, of course, is that experience has shown people simply do not buckle up voluntarily in great enough numbers. Despite incontrovertible evidence of the safety value of seat belts, surveys based on observation of belt usage show no more than 30 per cent of all drivers now wear their belts.

Although 18 other countries have laws requiring the use of seat belts, such proposals remain extremely unpopular in the United States. Automakers and Congress alike still shudder at the public reaction to the short-lived seat belt interlock of a few years ago.

A Gallup survey in early June, about three weeks before Adams issued his order requiring the phase-in of air bags or other passive restraints starting in the 1982 model year, showed 46 per cent in favor of such an order, 37 per cent opposed and 8 per cent with no opinion.

That same poll indicated 76 per cent of the public would oppose a law setting a $25 fine for the failure to use seat belts.

There is no question that installation of passive restraints, either air bags or belts that automatically envelop the driver, will add significantly to the already staggering cost of a new car. The government estimates the additional cost at $90 to $112 per car; the auto industry says it will be two or three times as much.

But how much is a life worth? What price will we pay to reduce the carnage on the nation's highways? These are the questions Congress must face in deciding whether to overturn Adams' order.

Bias in photo selection

Dear Editor:

Errors do occur. Occasionally one wonders how a particular glaring mistake happened, or the reason it was not corrected, in this case, before publication.

I know none of the young women candidates for queen of the fair. When their pictures first appeared I admired them all. Friday evening I scanned the special fair section. Is there a rationale for having pictured one woman repeatedly, with one other shown twice, and three shown just once? One of them was not clearly seen in a picture which she shared. At the least, the Progress Bulletin should apologize to the four young women who were almost ignored. The person responsible for the picture set-up should certainly be reprimanded.

By the time the Saturday edition was put to bed, someone on the staff must have been aware of the earlier edition. Could not, then, pictures of the entire court be shown on Saturday or Sunday?

In the future an objective study of a comparable issue should be made before printing. Then, hopefully, such an obvious bias will not again appear.

Was winner known?

Dear Editor:

Was the winner of the 1977 Los Angeles County Fair queen competition known before the contest was held? On Friday, Sept. 16, a fair supplement to the Progress Bulletin carried pictures of the five fair princesses. Crystal Texeira, Terrilyn Batson, and Susan Gilbert each were shown once, Diana Boots was shown twice, and Kim Jabara was pictured five times. That evening, the contest was held and Kim Jabara was chosen queen of the fair.

Alcohol to the rescue

WASHINGTON — A miracle may not be needed after all to reduce the nation's huge purchases of overseas oil. We can make up much of the oil deficit, experts attest, by producing alcohol fuels. Not only would this eliminate our dangerous dependence upon overseas supplies, but the billions we now pay to the oil potentates could be spent at home instead.

The automobile industry is prepared to adjust from gasoline to alcohol engines. General Motors' top energy researcher, Joseph Colucci, has declared in a company newsletter: "We'll be ready if the government should legislate its use in automobiles."

The technology is not new. In Europe, alcohol blended with gasoline has been sold as a motor fuel for decades. Years ago, Chrysler Motors modified some cars slightly to accommodate alcohol fuels and shipped them to oil-short New Zealand. Today, many race car drivers prefer alcohol fuels to gasoline. With only minor modifications in the fuel system, automobiles will operate on straight alcohol fuels.

Instead of hauling crude from Saudi Arabia, we could distill alcohol fuels from agricultural surpluses, timber wastes, wastepaper, even municipal garbage. The distilleries would also be far cheaper to construct than oil refineries.

Government experts tell us that alcohol engines would have two characteristics: They would operate more efficiently and produce less pollution. Studies by General Motors and Volkswagen, confirmed by Exxon's own internal research, have also shown that pure alcohol fuels reduce the noxious exhaust fumes that now stifle our cities.

We spent several weeks investigating the alcohol fuel story and reported our findings in a recent column. This stimulated a flood of letters into our office, demanding to know what the government is doing to promote alcohol fuels. The answer, regrettably, is not much. President Carter's 103-page National Energy Program devoted only a single sentence to the alcohol potential.

This strange reluctance to accept alcohol as a substitute for gasoline, despite the high stakes involved, can be traced partly to the oil industry. Officials close to the major oil companies control the policymaking machinery that produces the multi-billion-dollar energy decisions.

Investigators for Rep. Ben Rosenthal, D-N.Y., have found a heavy concentration of executives from the energy industry holding down policymaking positions at the Federal Energy Administration and Energy Research and Development Administration. But there is no real statistical measure of the stranglehold that the oil industry has on the federal government.

The oilmen and politicians communicate with one another through inaudible poses and gestures. If there is to be a deal between them, they don't blatantly come to terms about it. The arrangement is carried off through a process that is almost imperceptible. There is not going to be an incriminating document, tape recording or photograph left behind.

At a crucial stage of the 1976 presidential campaign, for example, two oil state governors, Oklahoma's David Boren and Texas' Dolph Briscoe, watched a football game a few seats apart in Dallas. A third spectator, then-Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss, took a seat next to Briscoe.

Between plays, they talked about oil policy. It was all idle, innocent conversation, Strauss assured us. But the two governors left the game assured that Jimmy Carter would look favorably upon the oil industry. Both Boren and Briscoe hit the campaign trail, thereafter, with renewed vigor. The grateful Carter, since assuming the presidential powers, has not gone out of his way to offend the oil crowd.

Next month, the federal energy establishment will be consolidated under James Schlesinger in the new Department of Energy. No one in Schlesinger's inner circle has shown much inclination to replace gasoline in our automobiles with alcohol fuels.

The prevailing attitude is best illustrated by the indifference of the energy officials at the Agriculture Department. They have done little to convert agricultural surpluses into alcohol, even though farmers are eager to unload the surpluses and the protein mash from the distilleries could still be sold as a food source. But the agriculture experts told our associate, Hal Bernton: "We haven't developed a position yet. We're studying the matter."

The Agriculture Department has been studying the matter for nearly 40 years. We dug up a 1938 report from the department's files, commenting on the merits of 10 percent alcohol blended with gasoline. "Experience has shown," states the 1938 study, "that blends of ten percent will function in present motor cars with practically the same efficiency as gasoline."

The oil industry, meanwhile, has moved quietly to block the development of alcohol fuels in outlying areas.

U.S.A. 'dumping ground'

Other countries are dumping their unemployed on the United States faster than we can possibly create jobs for them.

Our expanding economy can absorb our own population but it cannot provide jobs and/or welfare for additional millions of outsiders and it seems to me that Uncle Sam's first priority should be "homefolks."

Since President Carter proposed amnesty for illegal immigrants, there's been such a flood tide of Mexicans wading the Rio Grande headed for our "promised land" that there is no way the Border Patrol can even keep count.

Put it to a vote in the United States and additional outsiders are presently entirely unwelcome.

The most recent Harris Survey asked about the admission of another 15,000 Southeast Asian refugees — and our homefolks were overwhelmingly opposed.

President Carter, however, has fallen into the usual pattern — the immensity of having been elected President of the United States wears off after a while and those fellows begin to imagine themselves Presidents of the World.

The quesstimated number of illegal immigrants already in the United States is equivalent to the total number of unemployed.

The first concern of our elected leaders — at both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue — should be the best interest of American workers.

For thirty years we've preoccupied ourselves with the welfare of Western Europe and Japan and Asia . . .

At home we've preoccupied ourselves with the nonworkers and left the door ajar for more . . .

And while the United States disallows unfair competition from foreign production we do little or nothing to discourage unfair foreign competition for stateside jobs.

We won't let foreign countries sell their goods in the United States for less than our own production cost . . .

Yet we allow foreign labor to sell its services in the United States for less.

Some sociologists argue that most of the immigrants, legal and otherwise, are accepting menial jobs which Americans refuse to perform.

Those jobs would be more desirable if welfare were less readily available.

Granted, neither President Carter nor any other could shut down the welfare pipelines all at once.

After two and three generations on the dole, welfare has become such a way of life that the welfare army would respond to a cutoff by burning our cities.

What might be done is to wean them . . . gradually . . .

And to stop adding to the welfare and relief rolls . . . immediately.

Eventually working might again become preferable to loafing.

The noble ideal of making the United States a haven of refuge for Europe's "tired masses yearning to breathe free" was fine while our nation was an underpopulated frontier.

A continuing influx is not to our best interests or theirs. Comes a real recession — painful unemployment — the newcomers will suffer the most recrimination.

Just in jest

So you didn't get to view all the Emmy Award-winning TV programs that were televised this past year. So what? Don't get an inferiority complex when your friends and neighbors look at you in amazed disbelief. Even though you weren't as loyal as some to the boob tube, you are still normal. The most avid television viewer would never be able to watch all the programs now being aired over a 12-month period. Figure it out for yourself. It is a mathematical impossibility. Twenty-three thousand hours of network television are now being produced in the U.S. in a year. But since there are only 8,760 hours in a year, one would have to watch nearly three programs an hour non-stop day and night if he planned on viewing everything that is being televised these days.

Bypassing the legislature

By EARL G. WATERS

While Assemblyman Mike Cullen made a significant point in his criticism of the fact that $56 million of federal works project grants to state and local agencies bypassed the state's budgetary process and will permit the building of facilities with low priorities and even some which might not have won legislative approval at all, he was only nipping at the heels of the problem.

For while the 1977 Legislature meticulously screened a budget totaling nearly $15 billion, the amount of money which will pass through the hands of the state this fiscal year exceeds the incredible figure of $40 billion!!!

That fantastic fact is disclosed by Bob Schmidt, the enterprising reporter for the Long Beach Independent Press Telegram. Digging through the 1,157-page printed 1977-78 budget he found, in addition to the $14.8 billion in requests for appropriations by the administration, another $387 million in bond funds to be spent. Then he discovered a schedule showing a total of $8.25 billion of federal grants to be made to various state agencies. These were listed, without detail, in the back of the budget.

Pursuing the moneys which escape detailed study by the Legislature, Schmidt added a total of $16.5 billion in "other treasury funds which are not included in the budget totals." These included balances in various retirement funds, toll bridge and highway funds, the Veteran Home Loan Fund and other accounts.

The existence of funds which may be expended by state agencies, such as the $41 million in "endowments, gifts and private grants" available to the University of California, makes the legislative budget review a hollow farce.

As Schmidt reported, "the overwhelming number of money sources enables state agencies to disguise much of what they do, and to fund projects without the knowledge or approval of the Legislature."

Actually, despite the great amount of time the legislative committees spend poring over the annual budget, less than 20 percent of the $15 billion is subject to rigid control by the lawmakers. The great portion of funds are collected by the state and handed over to the schools and local government for property tax relief and other state-supported programs. Education eats up 35 percent of the total and health and welfare another 30 percent. Shared revenues doled to local government account for 6 percent.

Even great hunks of what remains that should be controlled by the Legislature, such as highway funds, has not been. Recent changes have been made to give the lawmakers more voice in the road money.

Perhaps it isn't practical for the lawmakers to exercise detailed control over all the money which passes through the state treasury but it would seem that it should be subjected to coordination as to state objectives and state fiscal policy.

Cullen, well aware of the problems, says that the Joint Legislative Audit Committee, which he chairs, is working to pull together all such information so that one hand will know what the other is doing.

Not porn, but child abuse

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing to thank you for the public service you rendered in the fight against child pornography. Because of your recent column on the subject, we received a number of calls and letters from citizens with information about individuals engaged in such activity.

Investigation of one such call led us to a highly placed professional person who, incredibly enough, works with young children. We learned that he has been engaging these youngsters in pornographic activity for quite some time and we are hopeful our investigation will end in a conviction.

By educating your readers to this reprehensible criminal activity and alerting them as to whom to contact you have performed a service of enormous magnitude. — Ilana Diamond Rovner, Chief, Public Protection Unit, United States Attorney, Northern District of Illinois

Dear Chief: Thank you for your kind words. I'm delighted to learn that the column was effective. Adult pornography is a bore. Anyone who enjoys such garbage as steady entertainment must have strudel in the noodle. "Kid porn" is not just pornography. It's child abuse, and anyone involved in that scummy racket should get the maximum. Good luck in the conviction.

Dear Ann: You are probably fed up with letters from C.B.'ers but I hope you'll find room for one more.

"KAID — 7777 North Carolina" should bone up before he calls "Mad In Illinois" ignorant. Power or no power, sunspots or no sunspots, it's illegal to communicate more than 150 miles from your station. CB radios are not toys, but that's how the "skippers" use them when they take an ego trip to see how far away they can get to say nothing.

When you want to talk to someone locally and all you can hear is the same ratchet-mouth bellowing, "Have a fine day!" it's enough to ruin yours.

The problem of illegal hogs doesn't mean anything until you are stranded in a car with a CB at your fingertips and you can't get through to ask for help because the "skippers" have all the channels tied up — including the emergency. And how sweet it is to be watching TV and all of a sudden some "Good Buddy" turns up the power so high it knocks out your picture and the sound goes dead — but you can hear him loud and clear — calling Canada.

Ask the FCC why they aren't doing their job of enforcing the laws, especially when the "skippers" are kind enough to give their addresses over the C.B. — Also Mad

Dear Also: O.K. I will. Dear FCC: Why aren't you doing your job? Since this CB flack has come up in my column, dozens of people have posed the question. If you can come up with an answer I'll print it.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you advised everyone to bathe or shower daily. I haven't taken a bath or a shower for three years and I'm fit as a fiddle and smell like a rose. The secret? I rub coconut oil on myself every day. It prevents sunburn, too. — Two-Gun Pete From Puerto Vallarta

Dear Pete: Did you say three years? Thanks for letting me know where you are. I don't think I'll go there.

Teaching your kids about the facts of life can be easy or awkward. Ann Landers' new booklet, "How, What, and When to Tell Your Child About Sex" can spell the difference. SEEDS

Q. "What are the best-selling flower seeds?"

A. In descending order, marigolds, zinnias, petunias, astors, snapdragons and sweet peas. As for vegetable seeds, list tomatoes, corn, radishes, lettuce and carrots.

Q. "What's the best material for making flags?"

A. Nylon, 75 per cent, and wool, 25 per cent, say the experts. Takes the weather and keeps the color.

Dr. Miller

Two male cats always hostile

DEAR DR. MILLER: Can you tell me how long it should take for two male cats to get along without scratching and biting each other? They are certainly not becoming friends very fast. They have been together now a year and a half and they still scratch and bite each other. I thought maybe if we got a female cat it might take their minds off each other but Mother thinks it might make it worse. — D.D.

DEAR D.D.: Triangles are usually troublesome and certainly a female would add fuel to the feline fires here. Rather than adding, subtracting (surgically, in the case of these two males) would be of more help in reducing their battling tendencies. If neutered, they should quiet down some though they might still be competitive territorially.

Keep their nails trimmed and provide immediate, decisive distractions for both of them the moment they show signs of any hostility.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My next door neighbor has two dogs and I don't condemn her for that; they're quiet and she keeps them in the yard or in the house. But her behavior concerning these animals is rather weird. Take, for example, the last couple of evenings: She has been out in the back yard slowly walking back and forth with this white sheet trailing out behind her?! Very weird! "Kind of early to be practicing for Halloween," I told her, "Ha, ha." She said it really wasn't and besides she was also looking for fleas! It's none of my business, of course, but, well, finding fleas with a sheet!!?? (Do you think I ought to turn her in?) — R.D.

DEAR R.D.: Slow sheet-dragging as a flea-finding technique is surprisingly rational. Fleas tend to multiply in nests outside and finding these flea concentrations is step one in destroying them and thus controlling the local flea population. A white sheet dragged over a flea nest will stimulate a dark flea or two to hop around and, as they are readily visible, they can provide a quick clue as to where their blood-sucking comrades may be found.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Please keep reminding people living in dry spots how desperately God's creatures need water right now. Thanks. — F.M.

DEAR F.M.: I intend to. Even the fish are running out of that precious stuff in some areas. It's a certainty two and four-legged wild creatures desperately need drinkingwater. Do whatever you can to keep at least a little water constantly available for them.

Children and their diets

Do you know what is the biggest complaint children have against their parents?

According to a recent survey, 58 percent of the children interviewed resented the fact that parents make them eat food they don't like.

In all fairness, I have to tell you that I gave birth to children with unusual diets. They tolerate only hot dogs that cost $1.25 in the ballpark, hamburgers 1/15 of an inch thick, asphyxiated by secret sauce, charred marshmallows speared on a bent coat hanger, and anything left under a car seat that has touched a dirty hand.

They refuse to eat anything they haven't danced to on TV.

Okay, so I lied when I told them it was good for them. I lied when I told them it would make them big and strong. And I lied when I said there were one million children in Argentina waiting in line for their Brussels sprouts.

But I did not stretch the truth one bit when I told them to clean up their plates — they were killing their mother. The way I licked their plates clean after every meal, you'd have thought I was sired by a cocker spaniel. I drank milk out of glasses that stuck to my lips, pork chops that have been used as gavels, whipped potatoes that had served as dams for gravy, and vegetables so cold you could taste them.

And did they appreciate it? They did not. We have an entire generation of kids growing up (58 percent to be exact) who regard Waldorf Salad as a form of punishment. My kids never shaped up until I threatened, "You keep that up and I'll put you to bed WITH SUPPER!"

Thanks to my diligence and eating all their proper foods, I was the one who grew up to be big and strong. One day, I turned on the disposal and as the motor whirred around noisily, I heard one of my children's playmates shout, "Hey, Andy, I think I hear your mother calling."

From that day forward, I gave up cleaning my children's plates. The first time I initiated my new philosophy I said to my son, "If you don't eat this, I'm going to throw it out.

"That's not much of a recommendation," he said.

Now they tell me.

Questions about prostate

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am now in my 80th year and except for some prostate trouble I'm in fairly good health.

Last year I started having to get up at night and have to relieve myself more often during the day. Whenever I rise from the sitting position I have to go. In addition, the starting of the flow is difficult and I do not empty completely so that after a few minutes I am compelled to relieve myself again. I saw my urologist and after a complete examination including a cystoscopy the only remark he made was to see him in six months or sooner if necessary.

Now, Dr. Lamb, I have a few questions. Can a malignancy be involved? I realize that the enlarged prostate diminishes the lumen of the urethra so that there is difficulty in starting the flow, but why do I get another urge a minute or two later?

Although the urologist has not suggested it, is there any reason why a prostatectomy is indicated at this time?

Do you think the urologist is waiting for me to close up before he operates? Is this the usual procedure in similar cases?

If there is no malignancy at present, can a malignancy be precipitated by operating?

DEAR READER — Just because a man has an enlarged prostate or an obstructed flow from the prostate does not mean a malignancy is present. A prostate gland may have an acute infection, a chronic infection, become enlarged or develop a malignancy. To give you more information on it I am sending you the Health Letter number 1-6, Prostate Gland. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. The older a man gets the more likely he is to have nests of cancer cells in the prostate. The later these occur the less likely they are to grow rapidly or spread. A man may live out his life span and never have any trouble from such cells. A number of these are diagnosed only by examination after death, or found only during a prostate operation. Frequent examinations by your doctor will detect any lump or nodule that might signal a change and still gives the doctor time to provide an actual cure of the cancer. The cancer growth should be detected as early as possible. That is the reason for repeated examinations.

The enlarged prostate prevents complete emptying of the bladder and because it is distended it is constantly sending out signals through your nervous system that you need to empty it. That is the basic reason for the frequent need to relieve yourself. Your doctor knows just how much residual urine is in your bladder from your tests. Apparently he doesn't think it is enough to justify surgery in your case at this time.

If there is a malignancy involved it must be a small nest of cells in the prostate and probably has nothing to do with your obstructive symptoms or your doctor would have advised surgery.

Whether or not you need a prostate operation depends upon how much obstruction you have. Doctors usually do not wait until the opening is completely closed. Surgery will not cause a malignancy but if there are any small nests of cells that cannot be felt by finger examination these might then be found.

(Dr. Lamb answers representative letters of general interest in his column.)

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

South was very disappointed when North dropped him at two notrump, but was delighted when he saw the dummy. The game was match-point duplicate and it looked as if spade declarers would have to lose two hearts, a ruff, the ace of spades and king of clubs to wind up with just eight tricks and South could see eight tricks at notrump unless East held a six-card heart suit.

East allowed dummy's eiaght of hearts to hold the first trick. The seven of spades was led to the king. West ducked! West also played low on the second spade. If South had been looking at all the cards he would have played nine, but he did play the jack. East dropped the nine of clubs and South saw he would have to abandon the spade suit and look for some other way to find eight tricks.

It wasn't hard for him. He just cashed the diamonds to get to six tricks; threw East in with a heart and waited.

East cashed four hearts and had to lead a club. South rose with his queen and had his eighth trick and a top score.

Note that this play would not have succeeded if East had cashed ace-king of hearts and led a third heart to start the defense.

Ask the Jacobys

The opponents have reached three notrump on the sequence 1 Diamond, 1 notrump, 3 notrump. Partner leads the queen of spades. Dummy shows:

♠A x x ♥A x ♦K Q J 10 x ♣K Q x

He plays low. What do we play with: ♠K x ♥Q x x ♦x x x x ♣xxxx?

We play the king of spades and lead the suit back. If partner holds five spades and an entry we will beat the contract.

DISTORTED IMAGE — An unidentified American soldier checks a magazine in the Stars and Stripes bookshop in Frankfurt, West Germany. A prestigious West German magazine has complained that American soldiers get a distorted view of Germany through comic books.

Charge comic books give GIs distorted view of Germany

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — A prestigious West German news magazine has complained that American soldiers get a distorted view of Germany through comic books portraying Hitler's World War II soldiers as "bloodthirsty killers."

"Everywhere on the posts, in dayrooms, pool rooms and barracks, GIs prefer to read war comics," said the Hamburg-based Der Spiegel.

U.S.-run bookstores sell GIs and their dependents 4 million comic books a year, half a million of them war comics, far exceeding sales of Playboy, Time or Newsweek, the magazine reported.

"In circulation figures going into the millions, German soldiers are depicted as bloodthirsty killers."

The Der Spiegel report coincided with growing irritation among government officials in Bonn over foreign media coverage of recent events in West Germany. The officials claim news coverage is distorting events by showing signs of a potential for a neo-Nazi revival in West Germany.

Der Spiegel quoted Cpl. Eugene R. Snider of Indianapolis as quipping that the GIs' love of comics "has something to do with the fact that most soldiers cannot read."

The magazine said a poll of 23,000 Navy recruits in San Diego showed that 37 per cent were unable to read on a "10th-grade level."

Of 200,000 soldiers who joined the U.S. Army in 1974, only 78,000 finished high school, the magazine said, adding: "Many sign up for duty behind barrack gates only because they want to escape unemployment or avoid prison terms after a criminal offense."

Snider, who has been stationed in Germany for 6-months, was quoted as saying: "Half of my friends .. call the Germans Nazis and these comics have a lot do with it."

Der Spiegel said the war comics, which it called "horror booklets," include Blitzkrieg, Sgt. Rock, Fight in the Army, The Losers, GI Combat, and The Unknown Soldier.

"The German picture held by these (comic-reading) GIs is largely influenced by comics and old war movies," Der Spiegel said. "The most popular cover hero: Sergeant Rock, the tough NCO who is the backbone of the Army and puts an end to Nazi villains torturing children and women.... The GIs know next to nothing about the Germans."

The magazine quoted Sol Harrison, president of National Periodical Publications, Inc., in New York as denying his company's comics were anti-German.

"We report how it really was ...," Harrison is quoted as saying. "War is hell. They are enemies, and that's it."

A saleswoman at a store in Darmstadt told the magazine: "We have entire American families come in and buy comics for $12 while their kids don't even have a decent winter coat to wear."

Bonn government officials have said that finding signs of a neo-Nazi revival in recent events is unjust and is a distortion of the attitudes of the majority of West Germans.

Eye training program for young CBers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government advisory group is considering a standardized training program aimed at teen-agers that it hopes would improve Citizens Band radio communications.

The program would be designed for youths because they are more accessible, not because they are considered the most frequent violators of CB rules.

Although a CB license applicant must certify he has a copy of Federal Communications Commission regulations, no test of his knowledge is required.

Indeed, some CBers wonder whether the rules are even read.

But Arlan VanDoorn, deputy chief of the FCC's Safety and Special Radio Services Bureau, reports "a lot of demand for an official FCC educational package" including one that could be combined with high school driver education programs.

A task force of the FCC's Personal User Radio Advisory Committee — PURAC — has come up with just such a program, "designed, focused and directed toward teaching young people."

"These people, for the most part, do not have outside responsibilities and are attending school full time," says the task force report submitted for PURAC consideration next month.

"Therefore, if educational credits were offered for a CB training course, these people would be much more likely (than their elders) to take it."

If accepted by PURAC, the report would be submitted for FCC consideration.

The report says older persons, "trying to make a living and-or raise a family ... have little time or incentive to attend classes for any type of CB course. ...

"We do not believe," it continues, "anyone or any organization can entice the general nonschool-going public to attend a school on any subject.

"The average CBer already believes that he is knowledgeable about his CB and indeed uses it every day."

The proposed program would include six regular sessions and two optional advanced ones.

The first would include an introduction to CB radio, licensing requirements and an explanation of the FCC and its CB rules and regulations.

Session No. 2 would teach methods of installing and safely using CB radios. Subsequent topics would be proper CB use, and the operation of radio transceivers, antennas, and accessories and test equipment.

The optional sessions would involve discussions of noise and interference and ways to best utilize the CB system.

The task force recommended a standardized course because of the "wide variety of emphasis on different subjects" found in the many different CB courses being offered in schools, including "a large amount of misinformation."

Van Nuys Boulevard: it's heart of car culture on planet Earth

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Robin tugged the denim cap a little lower over his eyes and lit a cigarette.

"On a good night, you'll find people standing on every corner," Robin said peering through the windshield of his 1968 Cadillac at the cruising cars splashing through the puddles on Van Nuys Boulevard.

"But on a rainy night like this, most of the people who are out here are the people who just won't die."

On a summer evening, as many as 25,000 young people between the ages of 14 to 30 cruise the boulevard in search of a good time.

One Hollywood screenwriter called it "the heart of the car culture on the planet Earth."

Indeed it is.

Cars of every description and color compete for attention, as their drivers relive the 1950s favorite, "cruising the strip."

Tanned teenagers cluster on corners to watch the passing parade, exchange gossip, share a smoke. Others prefer to ride.

The young freckle-faced blonde in blue jeans idly popped her Juicy Fruit as she searched for a rock station on the Cadillac's FM radio.

"I come down here because it's a lot better than staying at home," said Shawn, a 17-year-old senior at Van Nuys High School.

"It's the only place you can come totally broke and still have a good time," she added, turning up the volume.

"People just come down here to show off their cars and waste gas," Robin said. "If they live close, they're here every night."

Almost religious in their devotion to the Wednesday night ritual, they rarely fail to miss a chance to cruise.

It's an opportunity to show off a new car, meet new friends or swap stories with old ones.

Inching along bumper to bumper in everything from battered Volkswagens to customized vans, they seem to personify the California Car Culture of the 70s, where four wheels mean much more than mere transportation.

It's a way of life.

"It's a Great American tradition out here Wednesday nights," said Los Angeles Police Capt. Tom Hayes, commanding officer for the Van Nuys area.

"I guess it's a status thing to be seen on Van Nuys Boulevard, especially if you have a flashy car or van, and of course it's the old boy meets girl story," Hayes said.

Van Nuys Boulevard is even featured in a new film, "Stingray," starring Mark Hammill of "Star Wars" fame.

It's an adventure story which centers around a customized Stingray and the young people who devote their energies to build and display the car on Van Nuys Boulevard.

While there are still plenty of old Chevys, Fords and souped-up Plymouths seen on the boulevard, wildly painted vans are a favorite.

Many have interiors that rival apartments for creature comforts, including plush carpeting, stereos, CB radios, beds, and compact refrigerators full of cold drinks.

Sometimes the cars are lowered in front and raised in back, rolling along on oversized tires with raised letters boldly proclaiming they are Super Sports, or Wide Ovals.

There's plenty of chrome to catch the light from street lamps and neon signs, and some proud owners even go so far as to name their machines, such as the "Midnight Lady' one driver had on his jet-black Chevy van, painted in fancy script across the back panel.

There are cars for show and cars to go; some feature huge engines with racing modifications, and loud pipes that growl at stop signs while the drivers search the streets for someone to race.

Although cars are an essential ingredient, people play an important part in the Van Nuys Boulevard scene.

Pattie, an 18-year-old Van Nuys High School student, says there is a sense of comraderie among the regulars.

"The other night we collected $130 in about 10 minutes and bailed out this guy who was in jail for two warrants," Pattie said. "He's a biker named John; I really don't know him too well, but he's out here a lot and is just a friend of ours."

The police also cruise in their familiar black and whites, keeping a sharp eye peeled for traffic violations.

Angelo, a 20-year-old supermarket clerk who drives a Mustang, said the police can be a hassle, but generally aren't if common courtesy is observed when dealing with the officers.

"The cops are cool to you as long as you are cool to them," he said. "On the other hand, I've seen guys call them pigs when they get pulled over and they generally get written up."

Dave, a 17-year-old senior at Van Nuys High School, says the Wednesday cruising spree is great for breaking up the monotony of the rest of the week and for releasing tension.

"You can meet a lot of funny people out here, and you can be totally crazy if you want to be, because nobody takes you seriously," Dave said.

"You just let go and have fun."

HI, THERE! — Penny Freeman, 16, of Eagle Rock, left, and Shelly Aldrich, 16, of Glendale, are shown in the back of a vehicle as they cruise Van Nuys Boulevard. On warm evenings, as many as 25,000 young persons cruise the area in search of a good time.

Complaints suspend sex change operations

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — An Oklahoma Baptist church leader says church members were shocked to learn that sex change operations have been conducted at Baptist Medical Center. He says action will be taken to stop the surgery.

The hospital's board of directors had voted in favor of the operations, but suspended them this summer at the request of Baptist church officials after complaints from an unidentified rural preacher who had learned of the operations.

"This is more than a medical issue," said the Rev. Richard B. Douglass, president of the Baptist General Convention of Oklahoma. "The ultimate problem is that when we own an institution, we are publicly identified with what happens there."

The Rev. Mr. Douglass predicted that when the convention's hospital committee meets Oct. 6 it will vote "strongly against" continuation of the operations.

Some church officials said that if the operations are not vetoed next month there may be a floor fight over the issue at the state convention's annual meeting in November.

From tax lawyer to a winemaker

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — For Jack Easley, the transition from big city tax lawyer to Ohio Valley winemaker was as simple as walking through a doorway and donning a grapestained smock.

"The type of law I practice, I can control pretty well," says Easley, a vigorous man of 50 whose humor and directness explode notions of gray-flannel types steeped in tax manual rhetoric.

"And I knew that some of the clients that were happiest with me wouldn't care where I had my office — even in a winery."

So that's where it is, tucked in the corner of a one-time ice cream factory rescued from inner-city oblivion 3½ years ago. Easley turned it into a winery that is not merely an avocation, but a passion.

Using French hybrid grapes grown on the southern Indiana bluffs over the Ohio River, Easley and his wife, Joan, turn out nine varieties of wine bearing their "Cape Sandy" label. The name derives from the community near the vineyard, located in the river's scenic, sparsely populated "Big Bend" country.

Despite the 160-mile haul between picking grapes at Cape Sandy and processing them in Indianapolis, Easley thinks the split operation may be the economic salvation of the winery — one of six in Indiana.

"We can grow grapes in Cape Sandy, and we can't grow them in Indianapolis," he explains, "but we can sell the wine in Indianapolis and not in Cape Sandy."

The Easleys began winemaking as a hobby a dozen years ago, and within two years they bought an interest in a Michigan vineyard near their summer cottage north of Benton Harbor.

Dreams of a vineyard inevitably grew into the dream of producing marketable wines, but Easley speaks of it more like an artistic vision than a commercial challenge.

"You have illusions of grandeur, that you can make wine," he admits with a self-aware smile. "At first, you don't even tell your wife. Then you finally share it with her. Then you tell her mother. And then you've told so many people that you either have to make it or quit talking."

Easley began haunting libraries, devouring all the winemaking literature he could lay hands on. He also packed off to university viniculture seminars from California to Cornell.

In 1970, armed with climatological data from the National Weather Service, the Easleys purchased 120 acres at Cape Sandy.

Runaway bus kills woman

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 46-year-old woman was killed when she was struck by a runaway bus in an Rapid Transit District bus yard, a police spokesman said.

Maria Delores Fernez, an RTD empioye, was in the yard in Central Los Angeles Wednesday when the incident occurred, according to Sgt. James Wilson.

Wilson said a mechanic was working in the rear engine compartment of the bus when its engine started and the bus, apparently in gear, lunged forward with no one on board.

After striking the woman, the bus crashed into a trash bin, knocked over a chain link fence surrounding the yard and sheered off a power pole at the base before slamming into a concrete freeway abutment.

Carter: wouldn't oust NATO nation if it went 'Red'

LONDON (AP) — President Carter said in an interview published recently he is "very much" concerned at the prospect of Communists sharing power in Western European governments but that those countries would not necessarily have to withdraw from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

"If the Communist parties should become part of the governments of European countries, there would be concern about NATO defense," Carter said in the Reader's Digest magazine interview.

"This would not mean those countries would have to withdraw from NATO. But there is doubt about whether the loyalties of some of the Communist leaders might go to their own nations or to the Soviet Union. There would be question about the security of specific advanced weapons system and military planning."

The interview on international affairs, conducted by the monthly magazine's editors, was published in European editions Monday.

Carter said: "We in the United States should avoid any involvement in trying to shape voter opinion in those countries, while striving to present to the world the image of a democracy that does work, of free elections that initiate adequate administrations — and to show the countries involved that dependence on outside states like Russia is not good for them."

Public opinion polls indicate that a Communist-Socialist alliance in France has a good chance of attaining power there in elections next March. The powerful Italian Communist party already helps formulate government policy, though it is not represented in the cabinet.

Italy is a full participant in NATO but France is not a member of NATO's military organization.

The Ford administration was sharply criticized in Europe for suggesting that the United States might take retaliatory action against countries that elect Communist governments. Since taking office Carter has stressed the theme of U.S. noninvolvement in European politics.

On the subject of the Soviet and Cuban role in Africa, Carter said he agrees with American U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young that the Cuban troops in Angola are a stabilizing force there because they "maintain the status quo" by preserving the "present government in its control over at least part of Angola."

Cuban troops helped Marxist forces take power in Angola last year. Some stayed behind at the end of the civil war and are helping administer the country, where antigovernment guerrillas are still fighting a small-scale war.

Carter was asked whether "one-sided" trade in the form of extensive Western credits for the Soviet Union is jeopardizing Western security.

"There may have been occasions when we sold the Soviets equipment that inadvertently contributed to their military strength," he replied. "But in general we favor trade with the Soviet Union, and would like to see it increased — with the one caveat that we do not want to increase their military strength compared to ours. I think the present restraints on the sale of equipment to the Soviets are adequate."

ACCORDING TO MY CALCULATIONS...

The age-old science of doping the races is reinvoked at the Los Angeles County Fair in Pomona. The Pomona racing session continues through Oct. 1, every day but Sunday.

Mike Brossart
Progress Bulletin Staff Writer

Don Lugo High goes varsity

Don Antonio Lugo High's athletic program will take a big step upward Saturday at 2 o'clock.

That's when John Monger's team will play the first varsity football game in the school's history. The Conquistadores will meet Lutheran High of Orange at Orange High.

Up until this year, the Chino school has had freshmen only. Don Lugo has its first sophomore class this season and will have juniors next year and seniors for the 1979-80 school year.

Despite having no juniors or seniors this year, the athletic staff decided to schedule varsity opponents. The Conquistadores will be playing smaller schools, but schools with more mature and experienced athletes.

"It's a big challenge for us," said Monger. "But we wanted to play a varsity freelance schedule this season to prepare for next year, when we'll be in the Hacienda League."

Don Lugo and Charter Oak are scheduled to become Hacienda League members in 1978-79, when Alta Loma moves to the San Antonio League and Walnut to the Sierra League.

"We're very excited to get to be part of the Hacienda League," Monger said. "It's a very good football league.

"We'll take our lumps this year and next year, but we're shooting for when these kids are seniors and we'll have our first graduating class."

Don Lugo has an enrollment of about 1,100 now. The school should have about 1,650 students enrolled next year and 2,100 or 2,200 for the '79-80 school year, which should make it the biggest school in the Hacienda League at that time, barring realignment.

Freelance schedule

This year, the football team has a freelance schedule. In most other sports, such as boys' basketball, wrestling, baseball and track and girls' volleyball, basketball, swimming, track and softball, Don Lugo has designed its schedule as though it were an Arrowhead League member but is officially a freelance school. The Conquistadores' soccer team will be aligned with the Hacienda League, but again will be officially freelance, according to Monger.

Monger has quite a win streak going. His teams won three straight San Antonio League frosh championships while racking up 21 straight victories.

Don Lugo beat Charter Oak's sophomore team last Saturday, giving Monger his 22nd win in a row. But things are about to get tougher.

The Conquistadores begin their varsity schedule with three Arrowhead League opponents — Lutheran Orange, Webb and Lutheran La Verne — and finish against San Diego Christian, Serrano, Nelles, St. Joseph and Brentwood. Six of Don Lugo's eight varsity game's will be played at Chino High.

"Looking at our schedule as a whole," Monger said, "I think we'd be very happy to finish .500."

If the Conquistadores could win six of their eight contests, they would very likely receive a freelance berth in the playoffs of the Desert Mountain Conference, the new equivalent of the old 1A Division.

Giants handle Dodger subs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco Giants have had poor luck against the Los Angeles regulars this season, but at least they've shown they can handle the Dodgers' reserves.

With Dodgers' Manager Tom Lasorda resting all but two of his regulars Wednesday night following Tuesday's division-clinching, the Giants rallied from a 4-1 deficit to post a 5-4 victory.

Giants' rookie Skip James, who felt at home playing against many of the Dodgers he faced in the Pacific Coast League this season, was the batting hero with a two-run single in the decisive three-run seventh.

"I knew a lot of guys out there, so I was comfortable," said James whose bases-loaded liner pushed the Giants ahead. "I hadn't done much since I was recalled. This makes me feel like I belong."

Starter Doug Rau pitched the first six innings for the Dodgers, leaving with a 4-2 lead. Reliever Charlie Hough, 5-11, immediately got into a bases-loaded jam and Gary Alexander's two-out walk sent home the first run.

James then greeted Lance Rautzahn with the game-winning blow, a hit which helped the Giants snap a 14-game losing streak to Los Angeles at Candlestick Park. The Dodgers are 12-3 against San Francisco this season.

Greg Minton, 1-1, was the winner, but it took the sturdy relief of Gary Lavelle to notch the win. Lavelle was credited with his 20th save, setting a new Giants' record.

His success against the Dodgers was not surprising. In six games this season over a span of 7 1-3 innings, the Giants' bullpen ace has allowed the division champions only two hits and no runs.

For Royals

Champagne in Anaheim?

ANAHEIM (AP) — Champagne may finally flow for a pennant winner at Anaheim Stadium.

Unfortunately for long-suffering fans of the California Angels, the corks won't be popping in the home team's clubhouse.

Kansas City, idle today, needs one victory or one loss by the Texas Rangers to capture its second straight American League West Division championship. If the Rangers beat the Angels in the finale of a four-game series here tonight, the Royals would celebrate with a victory Friday evening when they open a weekend series against the Angels.

The Rangers avoided elimination with an easy 9-1 victory over California Wednesday night. It was a quiet evening for the Angels except for a home run by Ron Jackson and an eighth inning fight after pitcher Balor Moore hit Ken Henderson with a pitch following homers by Toby Harrah and Willie Horton.

Jim Sundberg and Dave May also homered for Texas with Dock Ellis winning his sixth straight game against the Angels.

There have been bad feelings between the teams through most of the season.

"I thought he was throwing at me," said Henderson, who charged the mound. "I was just trying to protect myself. I know Joe Rudi and Jerry Remy were hit by our pitchers earlier in the season.

"It was a lousy situation," added Henderson. "He was throwing 94 miles an hour at me."

Both Henderson and Moore were ejected from the game. There were no further incidents.

"I think my man (Ellis) kept his cool," said Texas Manager Billy Hunter. "When you have a 9-1 score it's a bad time to start something. It wasn't much of a fight except for the two participants and that is the way it should be."

The Rangers took a 2-0 lead in the first inning with a pair of unearned runs against Angels' starter John Caneira.

Jackson hit his eighth home run and second in two days in the second inning, but that was to be the extent of the California offense.

Lakers complete signing duties

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers have completed the most successful college draft in the team's history by signing first-round draft picks Kenny Carr and Norm Nixon to multi-year contracts.

Carr, a 6-foot-8 forward from North Carolina State and Nixon, a 6-foot-2 guard from Duquesne, both reported to the Lakers' training camp at the University of San Diego Wednesday night and planned to practice with the team today.

The double signing gives the Lakers an unprecedented three first round draft picks on their training camp roster, the other being 6-foot-3 guard Brad Davis of Maryland, who signed a mutli-year contract early this summer.

Overall, the Lakers selected eight players in the college draft, all of whom have now signed. Of the eight, six were invited to training camp as part of a 17-man squad.

Carr skipped his final year of eligibility at NCS and was the sixth player in the country selected in college draft. He led the Atlantic Coast Conference in scoring the past two seasons and had a career scoring average of 20.6 points and 9.2 rebounds per game.

Nixon, the 22nd player in the country selected, was among the top 25 scorers in the nation last season with a 22-3 point scoring average. He leaves Duquesne with a career scoring average of 17.4.

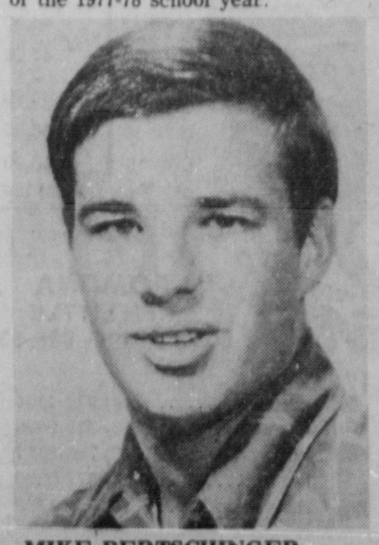
Running backs share honors

A pair of running backs share the first Prep Athlete of the Week award of the 1977-78 school year.



MIKE BERTSCHINGER . . .
co-Athlete of the Week

Mike Bertschinger of Chino High and Tommy Jefferson of Ontario have been named co-winners of the weekly award, which is sponsored by the Pomona Elks Lodge.

Each rushed for over 200 yards last Friday to lead his team to a season-opening victory.

Bertschinger, a 6-foot, 185-pound senior, carried the ball 27 times for 204 yards, including touchdown runs of one and 19 yards, in Chino's 24-10 win over Burroughs High of Ridgecrest. His average rush was 7.6 yards.

Jefferson amassed 203 yards on 21 carries in Ontario's 20-0 conquest of Mountain View. He did not score, but his longest rush went for 35 yards and he averaged 9.7 yards. Jefferson, a 6-3, 210-pound junior, carried for 200 yards in a game last year against Gladstone.

Bertschinger and Jefferson will be presented plaques at a dinner at Pomona Elks Lodge 789 next month.

Three other football players were nominated for the Athlete of the Week award by their coaches or athletic directors, and all three had very impressive statistics.

Grant Warhurst of Claremont, Doug Paul of Damien and Steve Green of Walnut were the other nominees.

Warhurst carried 17 times against Bonita for 188 yards. His 98-yard scoring run from scrimmage is apparently the longest in Claremont High history.

Paul racked up 107 against San Dimas on just 11 carries, including touchdown runs of one and 61 yards. He left the game very early in the second half.

Green burned Nogales for 257 aerial yards and two touchdowns last week. He completed 19 of 29 passes, with the scoring throws going for seven and 63 yards.

Any local varsity athlete, male or female, competing in a CIF-sanctioned sport is eligible for the Progress Bulletin's Athlete of the Week award. Nominations must be made by the athlete's coach or athletic director.

Eleven juveniles compete at Fair

Headed by Fanning and Harrison's Classy Little Reb, a field of 11 juvenile colts and geldings will collide in Friday's 13th running of the $17,500 added Beau Brummel Stakes at six-furlongs.

First post time at Pomona is 1 p.m. for the 11-race program.

Little Reb drew post position three and will be ridden by Francisco Mena. Little Reb accounted for the Golden Gate Juvenile Stakes in his first outing and then finished second behind Noble Bronze in a division of the Hollywood juvenile championship.

Kicking around

With Adrian Mercado and Willie Keo

LET'S TALK SOCCER BALLS — It's just incredible the number of so-called soccer balls that there are in the market.

Just this week I stepped into a major department store and there, nestled between pots and pans and slacks was a mound of soccer balls. A few yards back in the sporting goods department there were more mounds of neatly boxed soccer balls. A closer look at them revealed that although they were displaying different brand names they all said: "Official" or "Official size and weight."

To the parent who is going to buy a soccer ball for his kid the different brands, composition, prices, and even colors must represent a nightmare. Let's briefly outline the things to look for.

1. Stay away from rubber balls. While you may find these to be the least expensive (sometimes) they have an ugly feel to them, they are generally too heavy, and most important, to be hit by one is to know the feel of being whipped. It takes a long time to encourage a youngster not to shy away from a ball once they have been "whipped" by a rubber soccer ball.

2. In our opinion the best balls for use in junior soccer are the ones made with a nylon wound internal construction and synthetic leather panels on the outside. These balls feel almost like the more expensive leather balls but have greater durability, are water proof, scuff resistant, and can be restored to its cosmetic beauty with plain soap and water.

3. The ultimate in soccer balls are, of course, the all leather ones; because there apparently are some good and bad cows there are also some very good and very bad leather balls. The bad ones become deformed, stitching opens up, and stretch to watermellon size. Stay away from an all-leather soccer ball unless you know more about the subject.

4. Stay within the $20 price range. You may want to consult with your AYSO Regional Commisioner for special discounts when purchasing through certain local sport stores.

5. Check with your Regional Commissioner to determine what size soccer ball will be used for that age group. The balls come in three sizes, 3, 4 and 5, with No. 5 being the largest. We recommend that you do not purchase a No. 3 ball because these will be quickly outgrown.

POMONA SIGN-UPS are this Saturday at Palomares Park, Arrowh Highway and Orange Grove, in Pomona between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Many AYSO Regions have a long waiting list...don't let it happen to you in Pomona. Some schools to date have not passed out the flyers on registration so you might want to do your neighbor a good turn by informing them of these sign-ups.

CLAREMONT AYSO Division I and II will begin its season on Saturday at Griffith Field at 10 a.m. The season allows for 14 games, two per week, and they will be held Monday through Friday at 5:30 p.m. at Griffith Field.

The eight teams with their coaches are: Tornados-Al Rothma, Quakes-Paul Corsaro, Jaws-Len Lindberg, Thunder-Le Roy Swick and Gordon Taylor, Aztecs-Jerry Tracy, Cosmos-Tony Stanisci, Sounders-Dave Zehring, and the Lancers-Ellis Cumberbatch.

ONTARIO-MONTCLAIR AYSO reminds its coaches to attend the Coach Development Program Clinic on Saturday. Check-in time will be at 8 a.m. Wear the usual soccer clothing, bring a soccer ball (hopefully not a rubber one), and bring your own lunch.

Kickin' Around will be visiting our good friends of Ontario-Montclair this weekend so we hope that we can chat a bit while kicking around the black and white.

ON THE FURTHER ADVENTURES OF RICK DAVIS: Anyone who saw young Rick Davis in Claremont youth soccer and his developing years at Damien High under Al Mistri could see the potential and it was no surprise that Dave Chaplik's Santa Clara-to-Damien pipeline would scoop up young Rick for Santa Clara University's team.

Rick played a season for the Chaplik Broncos and led Chaplik's under-19 team to the U.S. Junior title game but there the Santa Clara odyssey halted when Davis was selected to play on the U.S. Olympic team (now in training for the 1980 games in Russia) where he showed so well that he was added to the U.S. National squad and jetted off to Yugoslavia to help the U.S. team in the 32-team tourney in Rijeka.

The Claremont youngster's showing in an earlier World Cup Junior tournament in Puerto Rico led to his selection on the all-tourney team and caused National Team coach Walt Chyzowych to take the closer look at Davis' abilities.

What Walt saw, he liked and the country's gain was Santa Clara's loss when Davis left Santa Clara to join the U.S. selection just as Santa Clara's juniors went into their championship final. To Santa Clara's credit they won the U.S. Jr. title without Davis, marking only the second time a west coast team has won the junior laurels . . . the earlier one to San Francisco's Hakoah Club a decade ago.

Tossed suddenly amidst players of international caliber the Davis arc had only begun to rise. Rick was a standout in the Yugoslavian tourney; scored 11 goals in the Olympic team's east coast tour a few weeks ago; deposited two in enemy nets last week when the U.S. National Team went undefeated in the international meet against three South American Clubs and walked off with the trophy. The Peruvian entry housed eight players who play on Peru's World Cup team already qualified for the Final 16 in Argentina for 1978.

It all points up the fact that our soccer players are going to be developed on our youth fields and in the high school system if they can put in the hours needed to develop soccer talents so that they arrive at the college level as sound players.

Rick Davis, along with other juniors, are now being scouted by the Cosmos, Dallas Tornado and other clubs and it may not be too long before our American boys will be given equal opportunity to play on college and pro teams.

The U.S. National Team is on tour now in Central America where they lost 2-1 to El Salvador (Davis scoring the lone goal), before 58,000; lost to Guatemala 3-1 and still have games with Costa Rica.

Rick Davis will return to home soil for the Sept. 30 game at East L.A. College when the USA meets El Salvador in a return match. Ahead of that one is the Tuesday game in Monterrey against the Mexican National Team who tied Alianza of Peru in Los Angeles last Sunday. There should be a good rooting force on hand to welcome Rick back home.

MSAC to host 'polo tourney

Mt. San Antonio College will be hosting the MSAC Invitational Water Polo Tournament this weekend.

The tourney will get underway at 12 noon Friday and run through Saturday. Saturday's finale is set to go at 9 p.m. at the Mountie pool. Eight of the top teams in Southern California will be on hand for the tourney in addition to the host Mounties.

MSAC will take a 1-1 season record into the invite. The Mounties beat Rio Honod 22-11 but lost to Chaffey 9-7.

The Mountie offense will be relying on Rick Broadley, Dave Earwood (who has scored 12 goals in two games), Rich Carleton and Dave Smiley in the tourney.

Steve Mohnike, John Wicker and Dave Norman will key the MSAC defense, along with Pete Schlieker and Marvin Hill in goal.

Defending South Coast Conference champion Orange Coast and powerful Fullerton will head the field this weekend. Orange Coast is 1-0 this year while Fullerton will be playing its first match of the season in the tourney.

Other teams entered are Saddleback, Golden West, L.A. Harbor, San Diego Mesa, Santa Monica and West Valley.

Games will start at noon Friday and run through 9 p.m. MSAC will play at 6 and 9 p.m. Friday. Saturday's action will get underway at 8 a.m.

"The best teams in Southern California are entered in this year's tourney," indicated MSAC coach Roy Wilks.

West Valley, from Northern California, won the tourney last year.

Citrus College will also be hosting a water polo tourney this weekend. The Owls are holding the Mission Conference Tourney Friday and Saturday.

Competition in that affair will start at 2 p.m. Friday and run to 5 p.m. that night, and start up again at 9 a.m. Saturday. All M.C. teams are entered in the competition.

Favored is Riverside City College, but a strong Chaffey College team should challenge for the tourney title along with host Citrus.

The Owls, 1-2 on the year, have several former Claremont High swimmers on their roster. Included are sophomore goalie Dave McCutcheon, and freshmen John Borland, John Oliver, Galen Fischer and Marty Jackson.

The Owl swimmers are coached by Bill Ralls.

S.D. runners fall again

LA CRESCENTA — Host Beverly Hills High defeated San Dimas High 21-41 here Wednesday in a cross country dual meet.

Beverly Hills' Brad Thayer topped all runners on the three-mile course with a 18:21 clocking. Saints' Charles McClure (18:36) and Todd Martin (18:37) were third and fourth respectively.

The Saint varsity runners are now 0-2 on the year. They will host Pomona High Saturday in a meet slated for the Puddingstone Reservoir north course. That meet will start at 10 a.m.

Tanner threatened

NEW YORK (AP) — Manager Chuck Tanner of the Pittsburgh Pirates was under police guard during Wednesday night's game with the New York Mets after he received a telephoned death threat during the day.

The Associated Press learned Tanner received a telephone call in his hotel room from a man who reportedly said: "Do you know what Roberto Clemente and Bob Moose (former Pirate ballplayers) have in common? That's right, they're both dead, and you could be, too."

Tanner remained in the dugout during the Pirates' 4-0 victory. He didn't even emerge to congratulate relief pitcher Rich Gossage, who saved the game.

Prep gridder dies

BUFFALO (AP) — A high school football player from Olean, N.Y., injured in a game Saturday, died Wednesday night.

Michael Dwyer, 17, a halfback for Archbishop Walsh High School, suffered a neck injury when he was tackled while returning a punt. He was taken to Olean General Hospital and then transferred to Meyer Memorial Hospital here. Dwyer reportedly slipped into a coma while in Meyer.

The Erie County Medical Examiner's office said an autopsy will be performed Thursday.

Vilas stretches streak

PARIS — United States Open champion Guillermo Vilas of Argentina defeated Dean Joubert of South Africa 6-0, 6-2 in a first round match in the Coupe Poree tennis tournament.

It was the 42nd straight victory and 49th in a row on clay for Vilas.

Single-season HR mark set

NEW YORK (AP) — Milwaukee's Sixto Lezcano hit the 3,430th homer of the year in the major leagues Wednesday night, breaking the all-time single season home run record.

Lezcano's homer surpassed the record of 3,429 set in 1970.

The Milwaukee outfielder hit a two-run homer in the bottom of the first inning of the Milwaukee-Seattle game.

Moments earlier, Baltimore first baseman Lee May hit a homer that tied the record.

U.S. leads Russians

MOSCOW — Billie Jean King beat Olga Morozova of the Soviet Union 6-2, as a four-member American squad won four of the first five matches in a U.S.-Soviet tennis tournament.

The Soviet Union's Alex Metreveli downed Mike Estep 6-4, Kristien Shaw easily defeated Yevgenia Biryukova 6-3. Ms. King and Mrs. Shaw teamed to pass Miss Morozova and Marina Kroshina 6-4, and in mixed doubles Ms. King and Estep beat Miss Morozova and Vadim Borisov 6-4.

Junior champ wins

LOS ANGELES — Van Winitsky, the U.S. national junior champion, upset 16th-seeded Ray Moore of South Africa 6-4, 6-4 in a second round match in the Southern California Open Tennis Championships.

Tom Leonard also recorded an upset when he eliminated 10th-seeded Jeff Borowiak 7-6, 7-6.

In other second round action Raul Ramirez of Mexico ousted John Lloyd of Great Britain 6-3, 6-3, Billy Martin got past Onny Parun of New Zealand, 7-5, 6-3, and Butch Walts of Fresno, Calif., whipped Jurgen Fasbender of West Germany 6-4, 6-0.

Tennis team to visit China

NEW YORK (AP) — In response to an invitation from the All-China Sports Federation, the National Committee on U.S.-China Relations and the U.S. Tennis Association announced Monday that they will sponsor the visit of an American tennis to the People's Republic of China.

Hot Royals clinch a tie

By Associated Press

"I'm going fishing and hunting," Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog said after his Royals clinched at least a tie for the American League West title.

The Royals exploded for six runs in the seventh inning Wednesday night to crush the Minnesota Twins 10-5 and assure themselves of at least a share of the division crown. And Kansas City did it with a remarkable streak of 31 victories in 35 games.

"I would say that's about the best you could do," Herzog said. "You can't expect to do it too often."

Another Kansas City victory or a loss by the Texas Rangers would give the Royals their second straight AL West crown.

"Last year we kept hoping for someone else to lose," said Kansas City first baseman John Mayberry. "This year we didn't mess around with that stuff. We'd just go out and win.

"Seems like it's not as thrilling," Mayberry said. "We're more relaxed. I guess the first time is always the best, but it's always a thrill."

While the Royals were reducing their "magic number" to one, the AL East race was getting tighter. The Boston Red Sox edged the Yankees 3-2 and the Baltimore Orioles blanked the Toronto Blue Jays 4-0. That moved Baltimore two games behind the Yankees while the Red Sox are just 2½ games back with 11 days left in the regular season.

Does Herzog have a preference on which East Division club he would like to play?

"No, I'll just get someone mad at me if I say something," the Kansas City manager said.

In other AL games Wednesday, Oakland outlasted Chicago 8-6, Seattle bombarded Milwaukee 11-4 and Texas rolled over California 9-1.

Darrell Porter's 16th home run of the season touched off Kansas City's six-run seventh-inning explosion that buried the Twins.

"I wasn't expecting anyone to pull away like the Royals did," said Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch. "My whole contention was that the Royals played to their full potential last year when they won 91 games. I had no idea that any team in this division would win 100 games.

The Royals have won 95 games so far this season.

Orioles 4, Blue Jays 0

"I know one thing for certain," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. "If we win our last 10 games, the Yanks have got to win nine out of 10. That's a large order, so there's still something going on."

The Orioles closed the gap on the Yankees when Lee May's two-run homer backed Ross Grimsley's four-hit pitching as Baltimore blanked Toronto.

Only one of the hits off Grimsley, 14-9, made it to the outfield.

Red Sox 3, Yankees 2

"We're still breathing," said Boston Manager Don Zimmer after his Red Sox edged New York. "This is what we wanted three days ago and now we'll take our chances."

The Red Sox completed a two-game series sweep of the Yankees as George Scott's 33rd home run snapped a 2-2 tie with two out in the sixth inning. Lou Piniella homered for New York.

"We're 2½ games out in the standings, but only two behind the Yankees in the loss column," Zimmer said. "We got 11 games to go and I'm hoping to win every one of them.

Yankee Manager Billy Martin took the loss in stride.

"We're still two up in the loss column over both the Red Sox and Baltimore, he said."

The Iron Horse rides again

(EDITOR'S NOTE: NEA Editor Phil Pastoret, a veteran traveler who never really adjusted to being hurled by air across the continent in a few hours, reveals in the following first-hand report that the train buff CAN go home again.)

By Phil Pastoret

CLEVELAND (NEA) — While the passenger jets play games of tick-tack-toe at 30,000 feet with their vapor trails and the buses trundle the highways with their loads of tailbone-weary passengers, something remarkable is happening on the twin ribbons of steel that still tie this continent together.

AMTRAK is once again moving people on the railroad. Enthusiastically.

The creature of the National Railroad Passenger Corporation, AMTRAK runs the vast majority of passenger trains in suburban and long-distance carriage in the United States.

A recent 2,565-mile odyssey by rail tells more of what's happening on America's rail system than all the demographic reports, the statistics, the projections and other tools so beloved of the experts.

YOUNG America is once again riding the rails — and loving it.

In the chill of dawn, AMTRAK's Lake Shore Limited was boarded in the company of a predominantly young crowd — backpack types headed for the coaches, and several less-than-ancient couples who sought their modest accommodations in the sleeping cars. (We almost said "Pullmans.")

Running on a somewhat-extended time schedule of the Lake Shore Express, once a crack New York Central train, the Limited as she pulls into Cleveland is a tatterdemalion collection of rolling stock gleaned from heaven knows how many railroads — a New York Central Car here, a C&O car there, a sleeper from, perhaps the old Union Pacific, and so on. The locomotive is a shark-nosed passenger engine of vintage years, but still in there tracking down the miles.

The train is 48 minutes late, small wonder, considering the abysmal state to which Eastern roadbed had been battered in the closing days of Penn Central operation. But a lot of new rail — new, welded rail — is ahead once we reach Toledo and the Limited is destined to arrive in Chicago smack on the nose — at 2:40 p.m., Central Time.

What does one DO on a train for 342 miles and 8 hours, 15 minutes?

Plenty. First, there is the train to walk — all 10 cars — plus a diner. And there is a meal to enjoy, at moderate restaurant prices. Or a snack in the club car-turned-snack car, again at no more than you'd pay the wagon that stops at the plant gates. And there is the unrivalled opportunity to catch up with the face of America — the scenery, as one is trundled along, sometimes at an alarming 79 miles an hour, considering the rollercoaster track.

But mostly, the trip is people. Some have been on cars which left Boston at 3:05 the previous afternoon — others began their journey in New York at 6:15 last evening. The two trains were joined at Albany and you have joined the train the next morning.

The dodderers are at a minimum. Only one young man was heard to have an adverse opinion. He was encountered on a bone-shaking section of track outside of Cleveland and said that it was his first time on a train, he was getting off at Toledo, and it would be his LAST time on a train. So there.

Much more typical was the reaction of Jim Morcan, a 27-year-old Utahan who had never been on a train before he bought an AMTRAK pass for 21 days of travel at a price of $220. He'd been riding, coach, to the limits of his pass, was going home, and was reluctant to foresake his new love, the railroad.

The old-time rail traveler has some shocks in store if he has been away from the rails for a few years. Station attendants tend to be young — and enthusiastic. Answers to questions are graciously given and the people operating the trains seem to be doing what comes naturally to those who love the railroad — having one heck of a good time at their jobs.

The equipment east of Chicago is old, but clean, and plans are under way to add two trains each way per day on the East Coast-Chicago run, according to S.J. Cala, director district supervisor, service, Detroit District of AMTRAK. Cala acts as stationmaster at Cleveland when he's in town (he once was the chief honcho of Cleveland Union Terminals when over 90 trains a day departed from the station.)

At Chicago, the best is yet to come. Here, at 6:30 p.m., you'll board the Southwest Limited — the posh Super Chief-El Capitan when it was under the wing of Santa Fe. Now AMTRAK, the train operates over Santa Fe right-of-way, virtually on the same schedule it used for years as THE glamor train of the transcontinentals.

You'll be on the train for 23.5 hours — till 9:30 Sunday morning, Pacific Time, when it will snake its way into Los Angeles Union Station directly on the button.

If you are a coach passenger, deep, reclining seats in high-level cushioned-ride cars are yours on a reserved-seat basis all the way. Washroom facilities are in the "downstairs" of each car.

If you're traveling in the sleeping cars, roomettes — compact quarters for living complete with toilet facilities are yours — or the more expansive bedroom accommodations. At an added fare, of course.

Again, what does one DO on a train for 2,223 miles and 23.5 hours?

The answer, quite simply, is that you have a chance to get it all together once again. For a full day and two nights there is NO television. If you have a portable radio, you just might get music — but there will be long stretches of country where your radio will not pick up a signal of any kind. (The sleeping cars once carried radios in the rooms, but the equipment is currently kaput.)

Because you have opted for all these hours on a train, you are given back the priceless thing the jet age has robbed us of — time.

You have time to think, to sleep, to daydream, to read — or just to sit and watch the panorama of America flow past the window of your coach or sleeping compartment — or the high-level observation cars of the train.

The train takes you through country and past vistas unscannable from the highway or airway yet to be built or flown. You get the feel — the true sense of the tremendous expanse of the land we live in.

You'll pay a few bucks more — dollar for dollar — Chicago to Los Angeles, for train fare than you will for plane fare, if you travel first-class.

AMTRAK's Southwest Limited is but one of the trains you can take to the Coast. There are the trains over the old Northern Pacific, Great Northern and Union Pacific routes, as well as the North-South West Coast routes to explore.

And if the time you've learned once more to savor has run out, and you find you must return by air — you'll get to where you need to be RIGHT NOW. Cleanly. Efficiently. Suddenly.

But you've left your heart somewhere along those 2,223 miles from Chicago to Los Angeles.

No worry, however, because you know you can do it all again. The Iron Horse is coming in from pasture.

Parent power

Couples becoming involved

Second in a series
By JOHN DOUGLAS

Parenting is "in." Couples freed from the tradition of bearing many children are concentrating on building closer relationships with those they have. They are successfully taking a more active role in the children's education through study at home and initiatives at school. The legal rights of both parents and children in school systems are being reasserted. Psychologists in many fields are gaining a new appreciation of the importance of home environment to a child's chances of success in school.

The result is a movement that can be called Parent Power. It is a movement far less organized than others that have demonstrated their effectiveness in various areas of public life. And it is much less publicized than many movements we read about. But the potential effect of Parent Power on the future of education and of society is probably the greatest of all.

In part, Parent Power has involved demands for civil rights, demands that culminated in the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974. This law affirms the right of parents (and students older than 18) to inspect a student's school records, to challenge information they believe is false or misleading, and to control the release of these records to outside agencies. While some educators have complained that one effect of the law will be to make letters of recommendation less candid, the chances are reduced that parents will be given one assessment of a student's progress, while a college admissions officer is given a different story.

Recent court decisions have also established students' rights to due process before punishment is meted out by school authorities. Before a student can be suspended, for example, the principal must present him or her with a written statement of specific charges, and if the charges are denied, must explain the evidence against the student. The student then has an opportunity to present the other side of the story, to summon witnesses, and to question other witnesses. Some people oppose mandating such a formal procedure in school, saying it creates an "adversary" relationship with school authorities. But the National Education Association, a professional teachers' organization, adopted a Code of Student Rights and Responsibilities in 1971 that provides for these safeguards and more.

Other important issues of parents' and students' rights remain unresolved. Should a parent have the right to intervene when a child is denied grade promotion, and how could "due process" work in such a case? Can school authorities be held accountable if they certify a student as educated (via graduation) when in fact the student is illiterate? Most important, how can parents help protect their children's right to learn, when violence in the school, teachers' strikes, or lack of funding effectively halt the education process?

The other important aspect of Parent Power is the newly appreciated ability of parents to help their children toward better grades, higher intelligence, and happier social adjustment. In his book, "Active Parent Concern," which gives a detailed program for home-based education, former U.S. Commissioner of Education Dr. Terrel H. Bell states in the bluntest possible terms the need for parents to take a more active role in their children's education: "Remember that your home can greatly compensate for deficiencies that may occur other places in the life of your child. But it is very difficult for any individual or institution to compensate for failure in the home."

New heart stoppers: terrifying roller coasters

By TOM TIEDE

EUREKA, Mo. (NEA) — When the feature attraction was built here at the Six Flags Over Mid-America amusement park, it took 100,000 man hours of labor, 105 miles of timber, and 50,000 pounds of bolts. But patrons say it's worth it. The "Screamin' Eagle" roller coaster is the longest, fastest, and meanest in the cosmos.

Its visual bulk is startling. Its ride is the stuff of stomach upset. Customers are dragged to a dead stop 100 feet in the air, then the bottom drops out. For three quarters of a mile riders reach speeds of up to 62 miles per hour as they contemplate eternity, at times virtually weightless, during 50 seconds of unlicensed aerobatics.

Yet smashing as it is, the "Screamin' Eagle" is merely one of an awesome new generation of thrill rides now operating in America's mechanical playgrounds. Amusement industry engineers are turning people upside down, sometimes inside out, as never before. And nobody is happier with the super rides than the paying customers.

Long lines file up to the roller coaster entrance here. Often, the wait is a half hour or more. Most of the patrons are wary, many end the trip ashen and dizzy, but officials say much of the business is repeat. "There's a crazy attraction to it," says a park employee, once you do it you must do it again to prove it was so awful."

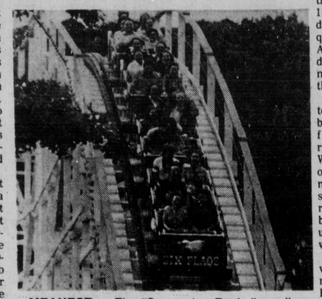
The same may be said about a ride called the "Corkscrew," a 1,250-foot series of barrelrolls currently operating in 11 U.S. parks. The ride turns patrons upside down not once but twice, at speeds of 45 mph, and still the customers love it. More than two million people have ridden it at California's Knott's Berry Farm.

Also, there is the vertical "Loop," a 50 mph structure that sends people through a 56-foot circle, and then, for good measure, repeats the process backwards. Loop customers at Magic Mountain Park in California have been known to leave the ride only long enough to get sick, then return for "just one more" non-chemical high.

Perhaps the most frightening of all is the "Great American Scream Machine" at Six Flags Over Georgia. It's designed to lift riders up a 105-foot tower and then drop them like stones. Park attendants are told to advise anyone with heart conditions to beware. "It's like falling out of an airplane," says one awed observer.

For those who get lightheaded halfway up a stepladder, the amusement park trend is noxious. But for park officers it is clearly good business. "People love to be scared," says 70-year-old John Allen, who has been building roller coasters (including the "Screamin' Eagle") for 43 years. The more they're scared, he adds, the better the business.

Allen's comment is an ancient one in the amusement park industry. France gave birth to the notion in the early 1800s when, borrowing a suggestion from Russian ice slides, French entrepreneurs sold tickets to the world's first bobsled on a track. That concept was the predecessor of the roller coaster and came to the new world in the 1870s.



MEANEST — The "Screaming Eagle," a roller coaster in Eureka, Mo., is the meanest in the world. For three quarters of a mile, riders reach speeds up to 62 miles an hour as they contemplate eternity. But they keep coming back.

American ingenuity lifted the "artificial sliding hills" out of the technological backwaters. New Yorkers built coaster cars on a winding double track in 1884, and by the 1890s the figure-eight design was added. A quarter century later Americans were riding dozens of variations at mostly scruffy parks throughout the nation.

Even then, the rides tended to get bigger and bigger and faster and faster. But the parks remained scruffy. After World War II, with the onset of other amusements, park attendance skidded into decline. Thrill ride manufacturers went broke. Rides remained in unsold inventory. The 1950s were particularly slow.

Then came Disneyland, with an entirely new formula for carnival fun. Walt Disney insisted that park attendants be clean and courteous, and that rides be more spectacular, if safer, then those that had gone before. An immediate success, Disneyland has been copied by dozens of like-minded amusement park corporations.

Today there are 30 big parks, and business is unprecedented. Twenty-six of the parks draw in excess of 1 million people annually. The total attendance for all parks, big and small, is expected to be 100 million this year, and 150 million by 1985. Presently the industry attracts more than $1 billion a year in energetic commerce.

Many of the ticket buyers are lured by the super rides. Jim Sheldon, whose Arrow Development Corp. is responsible for the "Loop" and the "Corkscrew," says that the American character is fascinated with adventure. Just as many people want to be artificially frightened in the movies, he says, many like the personal sensation as well.

Of course, people of other nations ride scream machines too. Japan owns a Corkscrew and some roller coasters: Germany has created remarkable structures of its own. But only in America is the action given cultural status.

One species here are called "Coaster Crazies" is said to travel the nation in search of the ultimate thrill ride.

Is there an ultimate thrill ride? John Allen says there is not. Jim Sheldon agrees, adding that even unsafe thrill machines have not yet satisfied the public appetite; in the 1950s a poorly designed bobsled ride in New Jersey was responsible for several accidents and some deaths, but patrons kept lining up until it was torn down.

Hence the end is not in sight. Here at Missouri's Six Flags a 250-foot parachute drop is being planned for next year. Competition will force other parks to build matching hair raisers of their own, perhaps even short range rocket ships one day. The sky is the limit; people are increasingly willing to purchase a good scream.

Market activity

NEW YORK (UPI) — Uncertainties about Bert Lance's successor, concern about higher interest rates and the economy's slowdown sent stocks lower Thursday. Bargain hunting, however, trimmed earlier losses. Trading was slow.

Investors were nervous while waiting for President Carter to name a replacement for Lance as budget director. Lance, considered Carter's right-hand man, resigned Wednesday.

Some selling was sparked by speculation the Federal Reserve Board would report a surge in the nation's money supply later in the day. A surge could result in higher interest rates.

Against this background, the Dow Jones industrial average was down 1.13 points to 839.83 shortly before noon EDT. The Dow plunged 10.82 points Wednesday to a 21-month low.

Declines outnumbered advances, 617 to 406, among the 1,504 issues crossing the tape.

Some investors were disturbed that Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal acknowledged the economy has slowed down. But he said a recession was not at hand and that he looked for the economy to pick up in the fourth quarter.

New York Stock Exchange volume at the two-hour mark amounted to about 7,600,000 shares, down from the 9,880,000 traded during the corresponding period Wednesday, the busiest session in nearly eight weeks.

Sony Corp. was the most active NYSE issue, off ⅛ to 8¼. Giddings & Lewis was second, unchanged at 10⅛. Citicorp was third, off ⅛ to 25⅜.

Cities Service was off 1¼. The company said late Wednesday it expects its 1977 earnings to just about equal the $7.98 a share it reported in 1976.

American Stores, a 2⅛-point loser Wednesday, was off another 1¼ after a delayed opening. The company said expects lower second quarter earnings.

Nalco Chemical, a 1⅝-point loser Wednesday, was off another 1⅛. There was some controversy over the destruction of some of the firm's test data. Nalco said the destruction was accidental.

Prices were lower in moderate trading of American Stock Exchange issues. Austral Oil was off 3⅛. The company has agreed to sell all of its assets to Superior for about $151.2 million. Superior Oil was ahead 2 on the NYSE.

'Star Wars' rentals

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Domestic film rentals from the science fiction feature "Star Wars" have passed $100 million, 20th Century-Fox Film Corp. has announced.

Dennis C. Stanfill, the company's chairman, and Alan Ladd Jr., its president, said Tuesday that total domestic box office receipts from "Star Wars" through Sunday were $147,666,858.

The share received by 20th Century, known as film rentals, was more than $100 million, they said.

The impact of "Star Wars" receipts will be felt primarily in the company's current third quarter, Stanfill added.

THE $146,000 GOLD-PLATED ROLLS ROYCE — Victor Barclay, managing director of the London dealership that sold a Rolls Royce Phantom VI Landaulette for the equivalent of $146,000, sits in the fancy car in London. The Rolls, sold to an unidentified millionaire, comes with gold-plated fittings, a stereo, 11-inch television in the rear section and a burglar alarm protecting the hood ornaments.

Economy growth at healthy rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department has revised downward slightly to 6.2 per cent the annual rate of growth of the economy, as measured by the gorss national product, in the second quarter of this year. Inflation was somewhat worse.

The agency had previously estimated economic growth at 6.5 per cent during the quarter. Economic growth in the first three months of the year was at a 7.5 per cent annual rate.

Even with the downward revision, growth in the second quarter was still at a healthy rate. The 6.2 per cent rate is the growth in the value of economic output, as measured by the gross national product, after discounting the effects of inflation.

The agency said inflation during the second quarter was at a 7 per cent annual rate, up from the 6.7 per cent rate it previously estimated.

However, since the second quarter, the economy has slowed, and a number of economists say in the third quarter it may slip below the 4 per cent rate that is needed to keep unemployment from worsening.

An indication of the slowdown was reflected in the nation's industrial putput figures for August released on Friday, which showed production was down five-tenths of one per cent, the first drop in output in seven months.

Some executives see Lance as a reflection

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Some corporation executives and bankers forgot the main issues as they watched Bert Lance duel for his honor and his job. They were worried about their own.

The same issues involved in the Lance Affair, particularly bank overdrafts and the blurred distinction between personal and corporate business, are erupting in heated business debates too.

Shareholder suits and angry annual meetings emphasize the concern over what some critics have termed the management ripoff, the conferring upon itself by management of numerous perquisites.

Not only have public attitudes changed in regard to management, but so have the rules and regulations. The Internal Revenue Service and the Securities and Exchange Commission actively seek to dispell any notion that what's good for management is necessarily good for business.

It might have worked that way for the likes of the Morgans, Hills, Harrimans, Rockefellers and Goulds, but times have changed, and many a corporate executive keeps a wary eye on "troublesome" shareholders.

It is true, as Bert Lance indicated, that overdrafts were and perhaps still are thought to be a legitimate way of doing business in in small communities, where the banker occupies a patriarchal role.

His arbitrariness, it has been said, is for the good of the community. Who knows best who should get money, and on what terms? The Banker, of course, or so the argument goes, is humane. He is wise. Responsible.

He also can be discriminatory. The "responsible" people in town who are thought worthy of the bank's money might also be a clique. Black farmers who tried to get crop loans after they registered to vote in the early 1960s can tell you about that.

Overdrafts to bank officers are hardly as innocent, not nearly so benign a practice, as Lance indicated. People do get hurt. In fact, unofficial overdrafts to officers are known to be a common denominator in bank failures.

Viewed from a regulatory point of view, the unofficial overdraft is a broken contract, a threat, however small, to a bank's solvency. In good times overdrafts might not be dangerous. When economies turn, as they do, such loans often cannot be paid.

It is for this reason that bankers throughout the country are disturbed by what they feel is the mistaken notion on the part of many people that overdrafts are everyday practice. Such notions, they know, soon lead to investigations.

But unofficial overdrafts — there are official overdrafts also, in which a line of credit is established for a customer, presumably after an inquiry into his credit-worthiness — apply only to banks. Even larger among the considerations that are focused by this inquiry is the personal use of shareholders' property.

Our conception of the corporation has changed in the past century, and much regulation has been aimed at reminding everyone concerned that the shareholders own the company and that management is an employe. Still, many people view corporations as private, a semantical problem that develops too easily when one wishes to distinguish between government and non-government enterprise. The truth is, the words public and private are still interchanged.

The large corporation which sells shares to the public is publicly owned in that it might have hundreds of thousands of owners. But it is private as distinquished from government owned. Private enterprise yes, but publicly owned.

And so it is in the interest of shareholders that the SEC has been examining another Georgia development, the assembly of many corporate jets in Augusta for this year's masters Golf Tournament.

Company business? Or private pleasure?

Because an executive takes papers with him on a weekend, does this justify his use of the company jet in traveling to his New Hampshire summer home? Don't all employes take their jobs home with them — in mind if not on paper?

New SEC guidelines require that perquisites for the personal use of top officers hereafter will have to be reported as compensation. And that, of course, means that the IRS is looking into the implications for taxes.

Will the Lance affair clarify some of the issues? Perhaps. Certainly it will draw attention to them, but the truth is that America still may not have made up its mind. The ethics of corporate life are still evolving.

Some say that to crack down will smother initiative, and that it is pettiness besides. Perhaps an equal number say that to crack down is the only way to save private enterprise.

News to use

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is expanding its Teacher Corps program for training teachers and other school staff members in poverty areas to instruct low-income students.

Previously, the 12-year-old program has recruited and trained beginning teachers only. A small number of these teachers will be included in the new program, but it will be expanded to include entire school staffs. Under the new program, which will start with the 1978-79 school year, the training period will be lengthened from two to five years.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare plans to provide funds for 80 projects, involving 12,000 teachers and 300,000 students.

The Department asks that anybody with any helpful ideas about the plans send them before Oct. 5 to Russell Wood, Deputy Director of the Teacher Corps, U.S. Office of Education, 400 Maryland Ave., S.W., Washington, 20202.

CAR ODOMETERS - If you buy a used car or other motor vehicle these days the seller must give you a written statement saying that the odometer, which registers the number of miles the car has gone, is either correct or not correct.

Under new rules of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, effective Jan. 1, 1978, the statement must certify that the odometer was either not altered or was altered for repair or replacement purposes only.

The new rule is designed to make the statement clearer and less likely to be misused.

For further information, write the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, Washington, 20590.

Squid are arrow-shaped sea animals with soft bodies and long arms similar to the octopus.

A squid differs from the octopus in having 10 arms instead of eight. Each arm has rows of round sucking discs which the squid uses to catch and hold its food while it is being crunched by the squid's horny jaws.

A squid can jet-propel from place to place by shooting a blast of water out of a siphon on its body.

Like the octopus, the squid can spurt an inky fluid that forms an underwater "smoke screen" when it flees an enemy.

The would-be predator is also left to search for an animal of quite a different color, for the squid can change color quickly to blend with the surroundings.

The giant squid, which is the object of most deep-sea monster legends, may be as much as 50 feet long.

But most squid are much smaller. Some may be only a few inches long.

Isabella seen as 'jewel' of a friend

NEW YORK (AP) — According to popular belief, Queen Isabella of Spain pawned her crown jewels to pay for the historic voyage of Christopher Columbus in 1492.

That may be more legend than fact, reports the Jewelry Industry Council, whose researchers have been doing some digging around in history to come up with the "inside story."

Facts relating to the circumstances under which the voyage was financed were brought to light through the help of the Hispanic Society of America here and history books that include "Jewels in Spain" by Priscilla Muller, curator of the Museum of the Hispanic Society.

It seems that Isabella couldn't pawn her crown jewels for Columbus — they were already in hock to help pay for Spain's war against the Moors.

All of the queen's greatest treasures were locked away in brokers' vaults at the time Columbus set sail, according to the council's account. They included a rich gem-studded gold collar, a magnificent pearl and ruby necklace given her by King Ferdinand as a wedding present, and a huge ruby, as well as the fabulous jewelled crown of Castile.

More than likely, the council reports, the beautiful auburn-haired queen helped Columbus by offering some of her lesser jewelry — mostly rich gold coins, a dazzling jewelled gold bracelet and a golden diamond and ruby encrusted salamander.

As a matter of fact, chances are the queen, once having made the offer, did not have to pawn her jewels at all, for her confidence in and backing of Columbus enabled him to obtain backing from other sources.

In fact, a police organization known as the Santa Hermandad (Holy Brotherhood) advanced most of the monies. Its treasurer, Luis Santangel, was a high official at the royal court and a staunch supporter of Columbus.

Columbus himself, with a little help from his wealthy friends, paid one-eighth of the expenses. The total cost of the expedition came to two million maravedis — roughly $170,000 in modern U.S. currency.

Joyce Brothers

Chronic ailment

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: I knew when we married that my husband had diabetes and there would be problems. But we are always fighting about his food. I go to great trouble to prepare meals but sometimes I forget to buy something special or am too tired to cook. Then he eats whatever is at hand. I also have to remind him about medication and doctor appointments. — C.P.

DEAR C.P.: When a husband or wife has a chronic ailment, there are some caretaking responsibilities. The afflicted person, while needing the spouse's support and help may also resent the dependency and react with a mixture of appreciation and irritation.

Thus, if you solicitously remind your husband of his medicine and appointments he may rebuff and accuse you of being overprotective and smothering. But if, in his opinion, you are indifferent, he may accuse you of selfishness and lack of love.

The dependency problems are further compounded if you and he use his health as a vehicle for conflict. For example, he may be neglectful in an unconscious attempt to rebuke you and you may unconsciously sabotage his routine to express hostility. Obviously, such tactics are destructive not only to his health but to your relationship because you are not dealing with tension realistically.

Food is normally equated with love and in the case of the diabetic the significance is heightened. A woman who has difficulty accepting her husband's disability may have difficulty incorporating his dietary needs into family routines.

I suggest you both become more informed about diabetes and that you try to be more consistent in food preparation. Your local American Diabetes Association can provide up-to-date information.

You both need to be more aware of times that either of you exploits your husband's illness to vent emotions unrelated to his health.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: You get so many complaints I thought I'd tell you I'm 68, have just retired and couldn't be happier. At last I have the time to do things I've always wanted to do. Now, my wife waits on me and makes some of the decisions. She goes out to work and I have the place all to myself — a luxury. I can read and putter around without anyone chattering and without feeling guilty. At first, I worried because I thought I was being unfair to her, but she says she's enjoying it too. I'm learning to cook and love it. — K.M.

DEAR K.M.: Congratulations on your using your leisure in productive and stimulating ways. Your enthusiasm and the life you describe may be your fountain of youth.

Many men and women enjoy switching roles, especially when the man retires. It takes praise and prodding to make most men stay in the rat race as long as they do. Many feel they have to accept the competitive, aggressive role even when they don't like it. The same is true of many women who are pushed into roles that may not fit them.

When the children are grown, parents, like you and your wife, often welcome the change in roles. The wife can now reclaim her independence, while the husband can become more submissive. He can, like you, enjoy staying home and living a life he may have always wanted.

Traditional kimono modified in Japan

By KATHRYN TOLBERT

TOKYO (AP) — "Nippon jeans" is what she calls the colorful farmers' and laborers' kimono.

Old Japan is brought back for the modern world in variations on the internationally popular kimono with the dash and elegance of haute couture — and all by a 75-year-old woman who has never worn a dress.

"The kimono is for all seasons, for all kinds of people. Yet today, everyone in Japan wears Western-style clothes. We need to bring the kimono back," said Sueko Otsuka, president of the Institute of Kimono and Professional School of Textiles.

"Of course it's uncomfortable to wear and troublesome to put on. That's why I've made these old-style working kimonos, the blue jeans of Eastern dress."

The kimono is one export of Japan welcomed and copied throughout many parts of the world. With its squarely cut, loose fitting free form and long, graceful sleeves, the kimono is used as lounge wear or evening dress and is shown in many major fashion collections nowadays.

"I love the kimono and am sorry to see it being worn less in Japan," said one famous Paris designer on a recent trip here.

Except by a sprinkling of the elderly, the kimono is worn only on special occasions and according to strict rules of dress: a minimum of jewelry, hair pulled up away from neck, no bright prints for married women and all layers, bands and sashes on in their proper order. It's an obvious problem for everyday wear.

But they've gone to the other extreme and adopted Western dress almost completely, Mrs. Otsuka said in an interview with The Associated Press.

"There needn't be such a rigid division between Eastern and Western clothes. We need more variety. It's not good to eat rice every day, but neither is it interesting to have bread every day," she said.

"I have never worn anything but kimono and I understand well its discomfort. That's why I've made something simpler. The kimono must change to keep pace with changing Japanese lifestyles. In the modern homes, long-sleeved kimonos are inconvenient."

Known throughout Japan for her kimono school, she recently held two showings of her collection of working kimono in Tokyo. A total of 4,500 spectators attended and numerous television, magazine and newspaper interviews followed.

The 150 outfits were sewn over the past year by Mrs. Otsuka and her assistants, without preliminary drawings. Made from rough cotton cloth and following basic rules of kimono sewing, the pieces included jumpsuits, baggy pants, loose jackets and capes, with a few Roman sandals and modern headscarves.

With the exception of a discreet zipper or a row of unobtrusive buttons, the clothes followed the kimono rule of wrapping and tying only.

There were strapless bodices and reversible jackets, which of course the farmers did not get into, but the fact remains, says Mrs. Otsuka, that the farmers, rickshaw drivers, actors, sumo wrestlers and others of the Edo period (1603-1867) had done all this before.

"I'm not a designer and I'm not a merchant, so I have no plans to have another presentation, although I'd like to show them in New York. I want everyone to know that we have these clothes in our history," she said.

Mrs. Otsuka, who opened her school 23 years ago after her husband died, received the first Fashion Editors Club prize in 1956 for her contribution to the modernizing of the kimono, and organized a kimono show in New York in 1960.

The school, employing 30 teachers, has an enrollment of about 800 students for a three-year course. The textiles are designed, woven and printed on the school premises by students, and fashion designers often come for advice and to study.

Job jar

The answer for keeping peace in the family may be the job jar, not the cookie jar. The Oct. 18 issue of Family Circle gives one reader's suggestion for dividing household responsibilities. Mrs. James Hudson of Sunrise, Fla. writes all the household chores on folded pieces of paper and places them in the "job jar." Come Saturday, family members draw for which job each will do.

District meeting slated Saturday

A day of cultural sharing is planned for the women of the Riverside District, United Methodist Women, when the unit meets Saturday at Chino United Methodist Church.

Registration begins at 9:30 a.m. and the program is scheduled from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. Luncheon will be served.

Reservations will be taken by Lois Williams, 626-5236, or Elizabeth Knapp, 628-1348.

During the morning a panel of women, including Dr. Crispina Macagba of the Philippines, Wenefrett Bailey, Alicia Cortez, Jan Huynh and Ila Dunzweiler, will share their cultural background and family traditions. Moderator will be Mrs. Marguerite Thoreson.

Devotions and songs will be led by Mrs. Doris Erickson. During the luncheon period members of the Ballet Folklorico will perform dances. Speaker for the afternoon session will be the Rev. Shuichi Fujishiro of Banning.

The meeting will close with a tour of the Spanish adobe near Chino.

Consumers saving money with produce

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Pick-your-own farming is helping to lick problems of high food costs and low farm income.

By picking their own produce, consumers are saving up to 50 percent on grocery store prices, as well as obtaining produce of vastly superior quality, according to Dr. Eugene Cravens, professor of agriculture economics at the Ohio State University. And farmers, who are saving on labor and transportation charges, are making more money on their end.

Today, city dwellers can choose from as many as 300 pick-your-own produce farms, Cravens said. Most of them are within 30 miles of major metropolitan areas. Consumers can wade into fields for nearly any popular vegetable, plus apples, peaches and other fruit.

Some growers near Cleveland offered pick-you-own grapes in 1976. Cravens said a number of growers are offering collard greens, kale and other "greens" in response to customer demand.

Cravens said gasoline costs eat up any savings unless a family gathers a lot of food, so pick-your-own is only economical if a customers buys in volume for home canning or freezing. But it's easy to end up with a lot of food.

"People go into fields thinking they'll get a couple of quarts of strawberries and they come out with eight," he said.

One grower who has benefited from pick-your-own is Lot L. Smith, who credits his switch to consumer-gathered crops with saving his farm. Today, more than half of his 415 acres is in pick-your-own crops.

Smith's farm is entirely in the city limits of Columbus. He has as many as 500 persons roaming his fields daily gathering such produce as strawberries, asparagus, peas, red raspberries, green and lima beans, tomatoes, cabbage, peppers, Irish potatoes, turnips, winter squash, sweet corn, kale and turnip greens.

"We get the matron who drives up in the Cadillac with the chauffeur to pick up a couple of quarts of strawberries, we get people from the inner city, we get everybody," he said.

Wedding betrothal forms here

The Progress Bulletin Family Section is happy to run the stories of engagements and weddings for residents of the valley.

Engagement and wedding forms are available at the newspaper office and are to be filled out for each announcement. The stories may be accompanied by a picture, at least wallet size of the bride-elect only for the engagement and a black and white picture of the bride only for the wedding story.

Engagement announcements are not run if the wedding is within six weeks. Wedding stories must be returned to the Family Section editor not later than two weeks after the wedding. Polaroid pictures and snapshots are not acceptable.

Dance set Saturday by group

The Swinging Stars Square Dance Club will hold its annual Grape Stomp dance Saturday from 8 until 11 p.m. Callers will be Carrie and Garland Freeman.

Joan Pupka, 1976 champion grape stomper, will challenge others for the title.

The dance will be held at Imperial Junior High School, 1450 E. G St., Ontario. Chairman for the affair is Larry Ames.

The beginners square dance class sponsored by the club will be open for two more weeks. The class meets at 8 p.m. on Thursdats at the West End Fish and Game Hall, Fourth and Gove streets, Ontario.

GOSH
Chalk Talk from
Griswold's OLD Schoolhouse

A rare 16th Century French varney is on exhibit in the ANTIQUE SHOP (lower level) Hand painted with real gold flecks in the finish - a real treasure at a bargain price. Marie Antoinette ordered 50 made as presents for her "ladies in waiting." The perfect gift for a "modern" lady who has been "in waiting."

INDIAN MAID of CALIFORNIA — an offshoot of the fine shop in the Redlands Mall. Dorothy Fisher personally selects the beautifully crafted pieces from competitors in Gallup, and from the top craftsmen in the tribes of New Mexico and Arizona. So many of her customers were driving from Claremont area to Redlands, that she decided to open a second shop in GOSH.

ORIENT HOUSE has a bowling team! Now, who would expect this from the diminutive little owner, Lena. She persuaded THE JEAN MACHINE (lower level) to develop a special art drawing for the back of her T shirts . . . this should make her team as well as her shop — a winner! Visit Nick in THE JEAN MACHINE for your special T shirt — and for jeans, belts, buckles, sweaters and neat denim skirts.

GHOSTS are flying here and there in the Old School House. On a dark night you may have one zip across your path — that is, if you attend the latest play "THE INNOCENTS" — now playing in CLAREMONT PLAYHOUSE. You'll be scared out of your wits — but you'll enjoy every minute. (Phone 621-5005 for reservations)

OKTOBERFEST — Still have a few booths left for service groups or youth organizations, or church groups. No charge. Your chance to make money for band uniforms, church project, or ? Call John Quinlan at 624-9691. Remember those dates — October 7, 8, 9 & 14, 15, 16. Come join the fun.

Yule greeting cards easily personalized

If you are among the many families — or individuals — who send Christmas greeting cards with your name imprinted, you may consider yourself an elitist for whom social correspondence is of significant importance. To maintain the concept, there is a certain formality to the manner in which names and titles appear.

Trained personnel in department stores or card shops can often offer guidance in these matters, but if you'd like a brief refresher course on the subject, here it is, as compiled by the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers.

When titles are used, the husband's name appears first: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Case; Doctor and Mrs. Frank Case; Judge and Mrs. Frank Case; Colonel and Mrs. Frank Case. Without titles, either name may come first: Frank and Helen Case or Helen and Frank Case.

The father's name appears first when children's names are added: The Cases — Frank, Helen, Bobbie and Mary; Frank, Helen and the Children; The Frank Case Family; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Case and Family.

A widowed or married woman uses her husband's name first: Mrs. Frank Case; a divorced woman uses her first name: Mrs. Helen Case. Most often, for a single person, man or woman, informality without title is the rule: Richard Crane or Helen Bennett.

How about plurals? There is a tendency by some people to add an apostrophe "s" to last names. For instance: The Kelly's. Use of the apostrophe is incorrect. Simply add an "s" to all last names except those ending in "s." With names ending in "s" add "es." The name Downs, for instance, becomes The Downses.

Titles are always spelled out: Doctor, Captain, Lieutenant. Officers of the Army, Marines and Air Force use title wth the grade of Captain and above. Officers of the Navy use title with the grade of Lieutenant Commander or above. In all services, officers of junior rank use "Mr." with the grade and organization on a second line: Mr. Frank Case, Second Lieutenant, U. S. Marine Corps.

While there may be a certain elegance to the imprinted, or "personalized greeting card," as it is known in the trade, many senders like to pen a note above or below their typeset name. This is often a matter of personal preference. The decision is yours on how you would like best to say "Merry Christmas."

Freeze savings

According to the Oct. 18 issue of Family Circle, a $1 investment in a freezer thermometer lets you keep track of how long food can stay frozen. With the temperature at 0 degrees F., commercial flash frozen foods are good for a year; home prepared foods and other frozen goods will last from two to three months. Higher temperatures mean shorter storage times.

Car injury rate high for children

WINNIPEG, Manitoba (AP) — Accidents involving motor vehicles accounted for 82 percent of pelvic fractures in children, according to an X-ray and patients' chart survey conducted by a radiologist in this Canadian city.

The study, conducted between 1966 and 1974, found that in nearly two-thirds of the accidents, the child was a pedestrian. Other studies already show that adults have fewer pedestrian injuries than children.

In his study, Dr. Martin H. Reed of the Health Sciences Children's Center reviewed the radiographs and charts of all patients 16 years of age and younger that were seen with pelvic fractures at the hospital.

During the nine-year study period, Dr. Reed found 84 vehicle-related pelvic fractures.

Although pelvic fractures represent less than five percent of all children's injuries at the hospital, Dr. Reed says, "they are important because they contribute significantly to morbidity and mortality in severe trauma and are often associated with other serious injuries."

New patterns

Not only are we selecting foods differently now than in the past but we are also creating new "patterns" of eating. The hearty breakfast of eggs and bacon has succumbed to the "eat and run" breakfast or no breakfast at all.

Firefighters' fitness aim of new program

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A planned program of diversified exercises geared to improve strength, endurance and flexibility has been made available to the nation's firefighters.

It was started after the international Association of Fire Chiefs, alarmed over the casualty rate among the nation's 186,000 firefighters, which it attributed in part to poor conditioning, asked the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports for help.

Working with the Travelers Insurance Companies, the Council came up with a conditioning program aimed at the particular fitness needs of firefighters.

Since the program's inception, materials, including a free-loan motivational film, and discussion, leader's guide and take-home exercise literature have been provided to more than 1,300 fire departments. Many of the departments have indicated plans to institute some kind of physical fitness program, according to Andrew L. Letendre, second vice president of The Travelers.

"One of the best services we can provide as a major life and health insurer is to focus national attention on maintaining good health through physical exercise," says Letendre, "rather than limiting our role to paying insurance claims for the results of poor physical condition."

Sabin urges drive on cancer

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Dr. Albert Sabin urged increased coordination in cancer research today and an end to "the present guerrilla warfare approach."

The American authority on viruses told the opening session of the 10th International Congress on Chemotherapy that despite the most extensive studies, there is so far "no convincing direct or circumstantial evidence" that any virus plays a role in any human cancer.

However, there are "inadequately or incompletely studied controversial questions" in this field although, the technology exists to provide the answers, he continued.

"Such answers can be obtained quickly by appropriate, jointly planned collaborative studies but may not come for decades by the present guerrilla warfare approach in many fields of cancer research."

Treatments for cancer and for infectious diseases are the prime topics of the five-day congress, which is being attended by almost 3,000 scientists from 65 countries.

Pump inventor earns laudes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry R. Worthington, whose pumps and pumping engines were a major contribution to the development of municipal water supplies, has been named "Inventor of the Month" for September by Intellectual Property Owners, Ind., a nonprofit organization dedicated to preserving and strenghtening the U.S. patent system.

At the age of 22 in 1840, Worthington built an experimental steam-powered canal boat. But when it stopped, as with similar boats, water had to be hand-pumped to the boiler. So he designed a separate pump attached to the engine, that worked automatically and was controlled by the water level in the boiler. On Sept. 7, 1840, he was granted his first patent on this device.

Worthington went on to propose and build the first direct steam pump, and then designed a duplex pumping system for waterworks that delivered a uniform pressure, IPO reports.

Worthington pumps and engines became standared in waterworks and later in oil pipelines. Protected by his patents, Worthington became wealthy and in later years was a founder of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Seeing at night is accomplished with a pigment called visual purple or rhodpsin. Light bleaches visual purple and it must be reformed before vision is restored after going from light to darkness.
